

Astronauts Return to Orbit From Moon Surface

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. blasted off safely from the moon and into lunar orbit today, beginning the complex maneuvers to link up with their mother ship. They left behind their footprints in the lunar dust and in the history of man.

Their liftoff began 69 seconds after the command ship, with Michael Collins its lone passenger, passed 69 miles above Tranquility Base. Seven minutes later, they entered orbit and a 3 1/2 hour chase began.

If all went well, the two ships would link up at 5:32 p.m. EDT. Tuesday.

Their thrust lander, which settled them onto the surface Sunday for a 21 1/2 hour stay, after which it was to be launched, left behind the spindly-legged stage, their launching platform, as a permanent memento of July 20, 1969 — the day man landed on the moon.

It was the first time a rocket had lifted anything from the moon.

Mission control awakened the moonmen shortly after 11 a.m. following a six-hour rest period. Instruments which monitored Armstrong during the night indicated he slept fitfully. There is only one set of biomedical instruments in the cabin so Aldrin was not monitored.

Sleeping in the cramped quarters of the LM is difficult and Aldrin reported: "Neil has been lying on the engine cover and I curled up on the floor."

Checking of systems and switch settings for the critical liftoff was the No. 1 priority after wake-up.

A successful liftoff would shoot them into lunar orbit to chase down Michael Collins, platform, as a permanent in the Apollo 11 command ship. Once linked up, they plan to fire themselves back toward earth early Tuesday, ending a space odyssey in which they etched their names beside those of history's great explorers, Columbus, Balboa, Magellan, da Gama and Byrd.

Through the magic of television, an estimated 500 million people around the world had a ringside seat to man's greatest adventure.

It was unforgettable.

Armstrong climbed through the LM hatch and started backing down a nine-rung ladder. On the second rung from the bottom, he opened a compartment, exposing a television camera.

The picture was black and white and somewhat jerky, but it recorded history.

Among scientists, there was elation that the crew had landed in an area with a variety of rocks, a treasure that held at least the hope of a rich payoff in the search to learn more about moon and earth.

As Armstrong planted his size 9 1/4 left boot on the powdery surface at 10:56 p.m. Sunday, he spoke words that will be remembered for all time: "That's one small step for man, a giant leap for mankind."

The camera trained on Aldrin as he stepped on the far shore 20 minutes later and exclaimed: "Beautiful! Beautiful! Magnificent desolation."

There were other memorable utterances during the day of high adventure.

There were Armstrong's words when Eagle separated from the command ship to start the dangerous descent: "The Eagle is flying."

There were Armstrong's—and man's—first words from the moon's surface after touchdown at 4:18 p.m.: "Houston ...

Tranquility base here. The Eagle has landed."

Or when Aldrin, a deeply religious man, relayed this message to the world shortly after the landing: "This is the LM pilot. I'd like to take this opportunity to ask every person listening, whoever, wherever they may be, to pause for a moment and contemplate the events of the past few hours and to give thanks in his or her own way."

They planted an American flag and saluted it, but made it plain they came to the moon as ambassadors for all mankind.

They unveiled a stainless steel plaque bearing these words: "Here men from planet earth first set foot upon the moon, July, 1969, A.D. We came in peace for all mankind."

They left on the moon a disc on which messages from the leaders of 76 nations had been recorded. They will return to earth with them the flags of 126 nations, including Russia. And they left behind mementos for three Americans and two Russians who died for the cause of space exploration.

The theme was carried through when President Nixon placed an extraordinary radio call to Armstrong and Aldrin as they strolled the surface.

As they flanked the American flag, Nixon said, "I can't tell you how proud we all are of what you have done for every American. This has to be the proudest day of our lives."

"For people all over the world I am sure that they too join with Americans in recognizing what an immense feat this is. Because of what you have done the heavens have become part of man's world."

"For one priceless moment in the whole history of man," the President continued, "all of the people on this earth are truly one. One in their pride in what you have done, one in our prayers that you will return safely to earth."

Although at times it appeared they were on a romp in the park, Armstrong and Aldrin carried out a true exploration of the moon.

Several times they tested their ability to move about in the one-sixth gravity field of the moon, loping like antelopes, and bouncing like kangaroos.

"It's not difficult at all moving about in one-sixth 'G,'" commander Armstrong reported, as he flashed before the camera like a graceful gazelle.

The camera was mounted 40 or 50 feet away from the LM so that earthlings could watch their entire period outside—2 hours, 14 minutes for Armstrong and one hour, 44 minutes for Aldrin.

One of those who could not watch on television was Collins, flying the lonely vigil overhead, returning to their landing vehicle.

"The surface appears to be very, very fine grained," Armstrong commented after his first steps. "It's almost like powder. The dirt adheres in fine layers like powdered charcoal to the sole and insides of my boots. I only go in a fraction of an inch, maybe one-eighth of an inch. I see the footprints of my boots and the treads in the fine, sandy particles."

He panned the camera over thousands of small craters that pocked the surface and at the horizon accentuated against a pure black sky.

"It has starry beauty all its own," he said. "It's much like the high desert of the United States. But ... it's very pretty at night."

He reported the surface was generally soft and cohesive but that he occasionally hit a hard spot when probing with his shovel-like sample collector.

Moon Soil 'Almost Wet'

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts may be bringing back some water from the moon.

Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. drove a hollow tube into the moon's surface during his lunar walk. He then removed the tube, bringing up a core sample of lunar soil.

He told mission control just after withdrawing the tube that the soil seemed "almost wet."

If the dirt indeed is wet, it may mean there is life in some form on the moon.

Scientists have said that one of the main reasons they think the moon is a dead planet is the believed absence of water.

Air Controllers to Resign

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three thousand air traffic controllers at major airports across the nation plan to resign when Apollo 11 returns to earth, a spokesman says.

The prediction came in response to plans by the Federal Aviation Administration to punish controllers who staged a nationwide slowdown last month to protest what they said was dangerous airway congestion.

Russell G. Sommer, western regional director of the 7,200-member Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, said Saturday that unless the FAA withdraws its punishment threat, the controllers will resign from their jobs, perhaps grounding all commercial flights.

Accident Injures Sikeston Man

In the only area highway injury reported by the state patrol, Lee Delplane, 21, Sikeston, driver of a 1964 Plymouth, was treated for minor injuries, in an accident at 2 a.m. Sunday on highway 62, a half mile west of Bertrand.

He lost control of his car. It went off the road and struck a telephone pole.

Rodeo Usherettes Needed

Girls desiring to be usherettes at the Jaycee Bootheel Rodeo should contact Stan Eudy, Jaycee president, at the Stallings-Huff Insurance Agency. The phone number is 471-3390. The rodeo will be held Aug. 7, 8, 9 and 10.

East Prairie May Need Primary

EAST PRAIRIE -- The East Prairie contest for a full slate of councilmen, to serve with the recently selected city manager form of government, appeared heading for a possible first primary setup today after the ninth hopeful candidate Carlton E. Lucas filed.

Unless 11 aspirants file before the July 25 deadline, no first primary will be needed from the general election polls.

Already entered are incumbents Mayor Lloyd Hogan, whose post was terminated after the city manager election, and councilmen David Brunley, Dr. A. L. Weaver, K. G. Whittington and Freeman McTigue. Newcomers include Ernest Douglas, Jack Siers and Jack Adkinson.

Man Shot in New Madrid

NEW MADRID -- Rosie Lee Gilmore, 25, is being held in the New Madrid County Jail and will be charged with felonious assault in connection with the shooting of Sammy Claiborne, 26, Sunday night.

Claiborne was shot one time in the stomach with a .22 caliber pistol after the two had reportedly been quarreling. The wounded man was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston where he is reported in fair condition.

The shooting about midnight Sunday at the Harlem Cafe on Russell Street, operated by Horace Cobb. Deputy City Marshal Shorty Price made the investigation and arrest.

Soviet Luna 15 Lands on Moon

JODRELL BANK, England (AP) — Russia landed Luna 15 on the moon's surface today, 500 miles from where America's Apollo astronauts were preparing to take off on their journey back to earth, Jodrell Bank Observatory reported.

Signals picked up at the giant radio-telescope here indicated that after four days of moon orbit the unmanned probe landed on the moon's Sea of Crises.

Jodrell Observatory, headed by 55-year-old Sir Bernard Lovell, stood by for any sign that Luna itself might be preparing to return to earth.

Prof. John G. Davies, Lovell's aide, said at 12:05 p.m. EDT: "Luna has landed."

The last signals received from Luna were "appropriate to a soft landing," he added.

Unofficial sources in Moscow had predicted when Luna 15 took off July 13 that it would attempt a remote-controlled lunar landing to retrieve a sample of moon soil—a task already performed by the American astronauts.

But in the absence of signals, there was no immediate indication that Luna 15 was operating "live" on the moon's surface.

HHH Finds Kosygin in Cordial Mood

MOSCOW (AP) — Former Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey met today with Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin and said Kosygin told him the Soviet government is looking forward to cooperation with the United States.

"Kosygin gave me a message to take back to the United States," Humphrey said after the 2 1/2-hour meeting. "He wanted me to tell the President and the American people that the Soviet Union wants to work with the United States for peace."

"I think there is a basic Soviet desire to negotiate in good faith on matters of substance," Humphrey also reported that Kosygin was "very complimentary about Apollo 11 and expressed his personal good wishes to the astronauts and their families." Humphrey told a news conference that the premier was very complimentary in general about U.S. space achievements.

The chief of the Soviet Communist party, Leonid Brezhnev, also wished the Apollo mission success as he arrived in Warsaw to attend the 25th anniversary celebrations of the Polish Communist government. As he passed down the receiving line at the airport, he shook hands with U.S. Ambassador Walter J. Stoessel Jr. and said in Russian, "Z uspehom," which means "With success," Stoessel told newsmen afterwards.

Humphrey was going later today to Yugoslavia.

It was the first time this year that Kosygin has seen a leading U.S. politician and seemed further evidence of a Soviet wish to improve relations with the United States.

Children Expected Moon Monsters

Where people gathered this morning in Sikeston -- to drink coffee, meet friends or to swing on playground monkey bars -- McCormick said.

A spokesman said the actions are consistent with the (Nixon) administration's desire to relax tensions and facilitate the development of peaceful contacts between the people of the United States and Communist China.

The announcement came a day before President Nixon and Secretary of State William P. Rogers set out on travels that will take them to a number of Asian capitals within the next three weeks.

But the spokesman said there was no connection in timing— even though it appeared that a United States bid to improve relations with Red China would make more favorable atmosphere for talks in some countries such as India and Pakistan.

Children's fantasies may become realities as earthmen travel to other planets, and these children can imagine a different type of life.

"I was waiting last night to see some moon creatures with great big eyeballs," Janice Powell said. She said that the astronauts looked a little like strange creatures.

"The astronaut would really feel funny if he fell off the moon and landed on Earth all dressed in that space suit," Jane McCormick said.

Military advancement is the main concern of space exploration, but the discovery of natural resources will probably advance, coffee drinkers at the El Capri said today.

Hal Robertson said he thought one side benefit of space exploration would be a change in the philosophy of man in relation to other men.

After watching Sunday's broadcast, "I already feel more humble," Robertson said.

Earl Jarvis was impressed with the brilliancy of the astronauts, Neil Armstrong and Edwin Aldrin. Jarvis said the most significant part of the landing, to him, was the astronauts' control of the space ship.

W. Raymet Miller said further space exploration is a certainty.

Richard Givens, Allen Leimbach, Charles Shultz and W. R. Burke think military advancement has to be a primary concern of the U.S.

"We've got to be prepared," Givens said.

At Harris's Drug Store, Sikestonians talked of the moon explorations while enjoying morning coffee.

Larry Casey supports the space program, but he wants nations to pool their resources in space exploration. Casey doesn't want nations to explore space separately.

Raymond Wright hopes there are diamonds on the moon.

"I feel close to the astronauts and got the same type feeling as when I hear the Star Spangled Banner -- that goose-pimply feeling," Billy C. Hanna said.

Some painters at Southwest Elementary School said they think, "The good Lord would have put us on the moon if he wanted us there."

"For the last 30 years, people have meddled with the good Lord's business. We're getting wiser and weaker," the painters agreed.

Kennedy Charged With Leaving Accident Scene

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Police today filed a formal complaint charging Sen. Edward M. Kennedy with leaving the scene of an accident.

The complaint stems from a weekend wreck on Chappaquiddick Island, adjacent to Martha's Vineyard on which this small resort town is located. A young woman was killed and Kennedy injured, though apparently not seriously.

The complaint was filed by Police Chief Domenic J. Arena with the District Court Clerk Thomas A. Teller.

Arena said that an Edgartown lawyer, Richard J. McCarran, had informed the clerk he is representing Kennedy. McCarran asked for a hearing, to which Kennedy is entitled before any summons is issued.

Teller set July 28 for the hearing, which will be held in the Edgartown courthouse.

A crowd of several hundred persons, mostly tourists, filled the street outside the red brick, century-old courthouse as Arena crossed the street from his headquarters in the Town Hall to visit the clerk.

Arena said Sunday he is "firmly convinced there was no negligence involved" in the accident.

"But the matter of the time period after the accident..." Arena said, "There is, in my opinion, a violation concerning going from the scene, leaving the scene."

The mishap occurred Saturday between 11 p.m. Friday and 1 a.m. Saturday as Kennedy was driving Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, of Washington, to a landing to catch the ferry back to the Vineyard.

The car skidded off a narrow bridge and landed bottomup in eight feet of water. Kennedy escaped with what a physician said was a mild concussion. Miss Kopechne, former secretary to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., was trapped in the vehicle and drowned.

Kennedy went to the police 10 hours after the accident. The car had been found by then; two boys going fishing saw its wheels beneath the water.

In a police statement, Kennedy said he was left dazed by the accident. He said he tried repeatedly to rescue Miss Kopechne, but was not able to find her.

The 37-year-old Massachusetts Democrat and Miss Kopechne had been at a dinner party at a private home on Chappaquiddick attended by several of Kennedy's friends and political associates. Kennedy said he returned to the home after the accident and climbed into the rear seat of a car parked outside.

"I then asked someone to bring me back to Edgartown," he continued. "I remember walking around for a period of time and then going back to my hotel room. When I fully realized what had happened this morning I immediately went to the police."

The time was 10 a.m. Saturday.

Arena said Sunday he already had sent Kennedy notice via registered mail that a complaint was being filed against him. He said that would be followed by formal notice of the complaint, after which Kennedy would have 24 hours in which to request a hearing. If no hearing was sought, Arena added, a formal summons would be issued automatically.

Kennedy and his wife Joan remained in seclusion Sunday at his home on Squaw Island, a short distance off Hyannis Port on Cape Cod where the Kennedy family compound is located. A contingent of police kept newsmen and sightseers at a distance.

In Washington, a spokesman for the senator said he would have no statement to make in connection with the accident for the time being.

Dr. Robert D. Watt of Hyannis Port, who saw the senator at his home Saturday afternoon, said Kennedy received "a blow on the head, but he seems to be all right." He said he prescribed a few days of bed rest and added that he had spoken by telephone with Kennedy Sunday and believed him to be improved.

Meanwhile, Dunn Gifford, a Kennedy aide, obtained the necessary release papers Sunday and arranged to have Miss Kopechne's body flown to Pennsylvania for burial Tuesday in Larksville. There was no autopsy, but blood samples were taken from the victim and sent to the state police laboratory for

Bargain Store Burglarized

Police reported burglars took $3,859 worth of merchandise from the Bargain Store, 132 West Front, early Saturday morning, or late Friday night.

Freda Grant, an employee, discovered the theft when she opened the store at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Mrs. Grant said entrance to the store was gained by kicking in the back door. A quick inventory by Mrs. Grant disclosed the following items were taken: 412 mens dress and sports slacks, 12 Glen Eagle jackets, 54 mens walking shorts, 10 mens sports coats, 15 mens dress suits, 4 mens top coats, 3 womens dress suits, 5 womens dresses, 14 pairs of mens shoes, 12 cigarette lighters, 18 mens watches, and one carton of Dorsey's bathroom tissue.

Three incidents of vandalism were reported to the police during the weekend.

Claude Prowl, 304 West Murray Lane, reported Saturday evening that someone damaged his 1955 Pontiac. Prowl said two antennas and the side mirror were broken, and the right tires were deflated.

The home of Inez Hunt, 204 Alabama St., was broken into and minor damage was caused to the interior. Mrs. Hunt told police someone had broken in Sunday and poured syrup all over the floor and grease all over the stove. They had also poured the salt into the sugar and taken a pressed ham.

A five by six inch glass window was smashed Sunday at the Imperial Bowling Lanes, Highway 60 east. Wayne Baker, 169 Presnell, discovered the damage this morning and called police.

Eighty two dollars and some personal papers were stolen Saturday night from the wallet of Isaac Broulin, Michigan while he was sleeping. Broulin had put his wallet into the glove compartment of his 1960 Buick, parked on Felter street, and fell asleep. When he awoke he discovered the money and papers were missing.

Two cars received minor damage in an accident Saturday on east Malone. John W. McWhirter, Bertrand, and James Edward Sturnes, Sikeston, were the drivers.

A 63 Ford station wagon belonging to Willie B. Doneal, 1108 Osage St., was struck in the rear this morning while parked in front of Doneal's home. The car's right rear was damaged.

Kenneth Walton, Matthews, was traveling east on Osage street when the 68 Plymouth he was driving struck the Doneal auto vehicle was damaged to the right side.

Scout Recruiting Night Plans Set by Educators

"School Night For Scouting," an enlistment program for Boy Scouts in the Okeechobee district, will be held Oct. 6.

Harley Barnes, vice principal of Middle school, chairman, and Jim Cornett, director of SEMO Vocational Technical school in Sikeston, vice-chairman, will be in charge of the program.

The school night program will give boys who are not in scouting, and their parents, an opportunity to become a part of the area Boy Scout program, Charles D. Long, Scout executive said.

Burglary Suspect Awaits Hearing in Five Breakins

NEW MADRID -- Butch Williams, 25, former New Madrid resident, has been arraigned in magistrate court here on five charges, of burglary and larceny following extradition proceedings in Peoria, Ill.

Williams is in jail awaiting a July 28 preliminary hearing. Because of a prior parole violation, he is ineligible to post $1000 bonds set on each of the charges.

The charges are in connection with the breakins Dec. 24, 1967, of the Jaycee's Swimming pool, Shelby Tractor Company, Henry's 66 Station, Lee's Standard Station and Sputnik Bar, all in New Madrid.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

The fish fries of today do not seem as interesting as they did when we were a boy living in Paris, Missouri.

Those of us who were allowed to go along with the men, left early in the morning, with seines, ice, tubs, knives, salt and the cast iron kettle, bigger than a bushel basket, plus a big 25 pound can of lard.

We wagoned out to one of the branches of Salt river, and while the men were seeming for the fish we boys gathered up the drift wood for the fire and cleared the rubbish up around the bank so that when the women came with the rest of the food and the lumber in the wagon for the table and benches they would have a nice clean place to get the meal ready.

After the fish were caught, cleaned and fileted, a preacher with the crowd would hold a short service and then we all would lay to, men, women and children.

Seem like to me that there was always more pies and cakes than we could all eat, which to a growing boy, was out of this world.

Now we could eat the fish and corn bread but have to pass up the pie and cake.

Well we'll quit slobbering at the mouth and go down to the Elks Club and order an individual cat fish dinner.

BE YOUR OWN SAFETY ENGINEER

Industry has done a remarkable job of reducing work-related accidents. Although there is still much to be done, National Safety Council statistics prove that - on the average - a worker is several times more safe in an industrial plant than on a farm. Industry's eviable record can, for the most part, be attributed to well organized and executed safety programs under the direction of trained safety engineers.

Few farms have enough employees to justify the employment of a "safety man." Every farm, however, can and should have someone with the responsibility of alerting other family members to hazards and seeing that safety rules are followed. This may be father, mother or one of the older youngsters.

Many plants require employee attendance at safety meetings. How about setting aside the after supper hour on the first Monday of each month for a family safety conference? Let each family member report on "near misses" he may have had. Discuss what can be done to prevent a recurrence. And do it.

Families working together can reduce the tragic toll of farm accidents if only you and - other members of your family - will be your own safety engineer... not just during Farm Safety Week, but during all 52 weeks of the year.

We really regret the withdrawal of the Delta Community Hospital from the United Fund. We can appreciate their portion being chairman of the Salvation Army Committee for Sikeston.

SAFETY HASN'T KEPT PACE ON FARM, PRESIDENT NOTES

President Nixon, is signing a proclamation designating July 20-26 as Farm Safety Week, noted that although American agriculture has made great strides in production it nevertheless remains the nation's third most hazardous industry.

Mr. Nixon stated that "the strong hands and management skills of our farm people have dramatically increased farm production," and observed that "American agriculture has advanced more in the past 50 years than in all prior history."

"A third as many farmers," Mr. Nixon noted, "are feeding twice as many Americans today as in 1920."

"In addition, America is the world's largest exporter of agricultural products, and our abundance is a powerful force for world peace."

While their accomplishments have dramatically increased production, Mr. Nixon said, "our farm people have suffered a tragic toll of accidents."

The President emphasized that agriculture continues to rank third among American industries in accidental death rate.

"Thousands of farm residents," Mr. Nixon said, "are fatally injured every year and hundreds of thousands disabled. The dollar cost to the nation approaches $2 billion, but the cost in pain, grief and suffering cannot be measured."

"This terrible waste demands our urgent attention," Mr. Nixon said. "It can be sharply reduced if everyone working in agriculture makes safety an integral part of management planning, part of every job and every activity, both on and off the job."

Mr. Nixon called on all farm families, and those persons and groups serving or allied with agriculture, to use all possible means for minimizing accident losses at work, in homes, at recreation, and on public roads.

MINI-BIKES AND THE LAW

The motorized mini-bike and their four-wheeled counterpart - the go kart - are becoming more of a menace with each passing day. They seem to be uniquely a problem generated by our affluence. Many of the youths of past generations could not afford the luxury of a bicycle of the standard self-propelled type, much less one with a motor. Most youngsters in our day hard to work long hours at odd jobs, to earn enough cash to buy a bike so that they might have a newspaper route to earn more money for other wants.

Now we are confronted with six-year-olds who ride on motorized mini-bikes in violation of the law. This actually happened in Denver, Colorado. In this particular case the bike did not belong to the child, but to a 21-year-old uncle. We cite this example for another reason: mini-bikes and go karts are becoming a real safety hazard. They are a cause of real headaches for law enforcement officers.

It is true that the vehicles cannot be operated on the public roadways in most states. But the fact is that they are being operated in that manner anyway. The police are trying to stop this, but there appears to be a great deal of parental apathy involved. How many children could buy one of the vehicles and keep it without the knowledge of their parents? How many parents who buy their children these potentially dangerous gadgets instruct the children in their proper usage and the places in which they may be safely and legally operated?

The principal reason for not allowing these conveyances on the roads is the safety of the operator; it is difficult for a driver of a full-size automobile to see the bikes and karts when they scoot along beside his car. It is also dangerous for children to be handling the motor fuels necessary for the operation of these motors. Just read through the safety procedures for filling the tank of a gas motor; this fact becomes quite apparent.

There is a certain thrill for the youth who is approaching the age at which he may begin to drive. This puts him at the threshold of manhood. Our youths are growing up at quite an accelerated rate in too many ways. Let us keep this one privilege - driving a car - intact; there is a lot of logical reason for its retention. We would hate to see the dangers inherent in these mini-vehicles brought home graphically by tragedy. The time to move is now and the responsibility is on the parents' shoulders.

NEW YORK (AP) - Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail: The U.S. population is growing older. Back around 1900 only four per cent of the people were over 65. But government figures indicate that by 1975 one in 10 persons - some 20 million - will be in the senior citizens bracket.

Speaking of age, here's a novel way to classify yourself. If the first love letter you wrote took a 4-cent stamp, you're still young. If it had a 3-cent stamp, you're middle-aged. If it had a 2-cent stamp, you're ancient.

Are the frustrations of life in crowded cities a major cause of heart attacks? Dr. Robert W. Wisler of the University of Chicago doubts it. A study he made of caged and uncaged monkeys found little statistical difference in their cholesterol levels and artery-hardening rate.

Thin people are more likely than fat people to be bitten by mosquitoes. The reason: they generally have a higher metabolism and emit more heat, which attracts the insects.

The open road is becoming more deadly. Every 10 minutes around the clock an American man, woman, or child is killed in a highway accident. Every nine seconds someone is hurt badly enough to be disabled for more than a day.

Quotable notables: "When you're a blonde, people sort of lean forward when you ask them a question. They take your arm to keep you from falling into an open manhole. But when you're a brunette... you're just one of the bunch." -actress Carol Channing.

Speed-up: By signing only his first and last names to official documents - omitting the middle name or initial - President Nixon is reported to save 47.8 seconds a day, according to the New Yorker magazine. That gives me about four minutes more a week to solve major crises at home and abroad.

Household hint: If you can't seal an envelope because it has too little adhesive, use colorless nail polish as a glue. It dries quickly, leaves no smudge, and further advantage: the envelope can't be steamed open and resealed.

Spreading the Gospel: One Midwest auto dealer places a copy of the New Testament in the glove compartment of every new or used car he sells.

Protection: Perhaps the widest fear in America today is the fear of illness. Nine out of 10 people in this country under 65 now have some form of private health insurance.

Quickies: Color blindness is more common among highly civilized people than among savages. The longest national anthem is that of Greece, which has 158 verses; the shortest anthems are those of Japan, Jordan and San Marino, each having only four lines. An Australian boomerang in the hands of an expert is deadly up to 100 yards. The longest hop on record by a flea, measured in 1910, was 12 inches.

It was Charles Baudelaire who observed, "One must work, if not from inclination, at least out of despair - since it proves, on close examination, that work is less boring than amusing oneself."

HIGHER TAXES CAUSE INFLATION

The buying power of the U.S. dollar has gone down by 12 cents during the last four years. Further still, in terms of purchasing power, the 1939 U.S. dollar is now worth only 39 cents. Inflation is approaching the galloping - spiral level in economic annals.

The day of reckoning for the Keynesian "unlimited money" theorists is fastly approaching since the fiscal manipulation of taxes and money supply has nearly reached the point of self-destruction. It has proved true in other countries in the past and is proving true in the U.S. today that higher taxes to deflate actually add to costs already under pressure from higher costs and higher taxes. This is none other than a disguised inflationary spiral which our Statesmen have failed to

Washington - Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

July 19, 1969

Dear George: When I asked Aunt Luvie whether I should go all the way down to Cape Kennedy to see only 15 seconds of the moon launch, she said: "Of course. It'll give you a chance to write your grandchildren about it for years."

So I went. I was glad I went. And to fulfill her prediction I am writing to you.

Everybody and his brother was there, ranging from ex-president Johnson, who was three, ranging from Lyndon Johnson, who was 70, to the New Yorker magazine, who was 65. I saw a lot of people, including Sen. Lyndon Johnson, mad. They kept vowing that the USA was not going to become a second-class power.

And at Cape Kennedy last week we prove that we weren't at least in outer space. But in inner space, the big question is: Can we apply the same teamwork to solving our urgent problems at home that we applied to reaching to the moon? If we don't, if we don't clean up our water supply and purify our air and stop the decay of our big cities, we might very well become a second-class power.

For instance, we have been talking about cleaning up one of our most beautiful rivers - the Potomac. We've been talking about it for 20 years. But we can't supply the teamwork to do it. Factories on the upper Potomac and cities along its banks keep pouring sewage and waste into the river so nobody can even swim in it. When I first came to Washington, swimming was fine; but not anymore.

There are scores of similar places in the United States - such as Lake Erie - which must be cleaned up if this nation is to have enough water to survive. But we can't get industry to cooperate with the cities, or the states to cooperate with the federal government, with the same teamwork that got us to the moon.

Right here in Washington we have an outrageous case of bickering instead of teamwork over traffic. The nation's capital very much needs a subway to curtail auto traffic and connect the suburbs with the city. But the congressional who control the District of Columbia have their backs up against the people of Washington and say there will be no subway until Washington builds more concrete buildways.

WHO MURDERED MBOYA?

A Letter From The Grave

Washington, D.C. - It was a quiet Sunday in downtown, quite metropolitan Nairobi, Kenya. The white "settlers" were in their highlands. The black Bantus were in their "locations."

At noon on a 28-year-old handsome African, reminiscent of Sidney Poitier, drove his Land Rover to the entrance of the legendary New Stanley Hotel. An American foreign correspondent got aboard and they drove to a huge Quonset-hut type "hall" for a massive union meeting.

I am that newsmen. The African was Tom Mboya, then chief of the Kenya Federation of Labor.

Ten years later, almost to the very hour, he was shot down in an American Mafia style. He was dead before he hit the sidewalk. It's no secret in the world intelligence community that the Kenyan authorities believe Tom was murdered by the same Chinese Communist apparatus operating under a Dar es Salaam, Tanzanian cover.

That "apparatus" actually functions in Zanzibar. It has been attempting to infiltrate the Kenyan army. It has poured tens of thousands of dollars into pivotal Kenya to bribe and finance Tom Mboya's enemies. It has attempted to finance a network of publications and broadcast facilities.

Mboya, who was Minister of Economic Planning and Development, was expected to succeed aging little President Jomo Kenyatta.

Tom had started as the best friend the democratic West had in all of Africa - a continent as huge as Russia and China combined. As we corresponded, his views changed. What sort of president would he have made? What would he have done with the nation which is the most influential in East Africa? Some weeks ago, I wrote asking him for a cross-run on the full spectrum of his views. He wrote me the following letter just before he was gunned down. I offer it as a reflection of the views of African leaders some of us have helped gain power, only to find that a friend in power is a friend lost. Here is the letter exactly as he wrote it:

"Dear Victor:

"Reading what other people write about African countries is rather like looking through the wrong end of a telescope, at a familiar scene, or perhaps seeing it in a distorting mirror. One of the main things which the people of America and the people of Africa have in common is great ignorance about one another. In my visits to the United States I have noticed that many people seem to think our continent is in a state of more or less continuous anarchy and tribal warfare."

"Africa has generally been wary of becoming too closely involved with the United States. Partly this is due to our determination to steer our non-aligned course and create our own institutions to suit our needs. We have seen in South Africa and in Eastern Europe, what happens to the independence of small nations which allow themselves to become client states."

"The much-publicized activities of the CIA in various countries have further helped to establish the stereotype of the ugly American. Various revelations about the Agency's operations have created a situation in which people and organizations who innocently established contact with different American personalities, foundations and organizations have been exposed to great personal embarrassment. In turn this means that people have become very cautious and reluctant to associate with any American organizations for fear that such bodies may later be proved to have CIA connections!"

"It is taken for granted that relations between America and Africa will cool during the time of the present Administration, as the reduced level of aid continues. Some Americans may be interested in what happens in the country, particularly because they receive any help. Within a stronger, abler members of the recognize their duty to help their weaker brethren. Aid from richer to poorer countries is a direct relevance to our own step towards civilised international behaviour. In fact, such help does not only benefit the recipients. Aid a most effective way of helping the donor countries to promote their own trade and of fostering a world order in which their own economies may grow and prosper. The old notion that developing countries are just sitting round waiting for aid is usually realised. The motto now among African states is self-reliance in an interdependent world economy! It is our belief that aid must gradually be replaced by trade. This is the context within which aid should be viewed and we reject the paternalistic postures of spokesmen of developed nations who often pretend that aid is a form of charity, a

"I didn't mean to give you a lecture. But when I see the big cities neglected, our rivers getting more and more poisoned and the air we breathe getting more and more filled with auto exhaust, I wonder whether the day may not come when we'll have to go and live on the moon. Unfortunately, it's not a fair inheritance to give you, but the older generation has fouled it up so badly that I doubt that we can ever solve it. With a fresh approach, perhaps you can."

Be careful of those big snakes and alligators down there on the Amazon.

CHICKEN IN THE MORNIN' ... Simmer is for chicken, not for you in the good old summertime. No need to sweeter in hot kitchen when the temperature is up. Take advantage of the morning breeze to simmer a chicken for a real cool dinner. But chicken in a kettle with 2 cups water, onion, celery, bay leaves, Ac'cent, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, cover tightly and reduce heat allowing chicken to simmer for 1 hour until tender. Remove from heat, strain broth and refrigerate chicken and broth at once. When cool, here's what you do. Remove meat from bones and dice. Combine diced chicken with some sliced celery and pecans and toss lightly with a dressing of mayonnaise, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Voila, a savory summer chicken salad for a perfect dinner entrée.

For flavor variation try adding U. grapes, sliced peaches, or small melon wedges in place of the pecans and celery.

Nixon Hoping to Employ Women in Government Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon hopes for breakthroughs in appointing more qualified women to such government jobs as the judiciary, federal boards and commissions, says an aide, and a court post "could lead at some future date to a woman on the Supreme Court."

Saying this Wednesday was presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who added that Nixon's "intent is not to indicate that he, as President, will necessarily appoint a woman to the Supreme Court."

Ziegler commented to clear up confusion created last week. At that time Four Republican congresswoman appealed to Nixon for more high-policy jobs for women in the administration. They left with the impression he might try to specifically appoint a woman to the Supreme Court or the Federal Communications Commission.

The Nixon administration has named only a few women to posts, a total of 35, which includes 15 part-time consultants to advisory boards and commissions.

70s Aren't Sexless

NEW YORK (AP) — The mature woman's sex drive does not end with the menopause but may last at least into her 70s and may even intensify with age, concludes a report prepared by the Information Center on Women, a research arm of Ayerst Laboratories, a pharmaceutical firm.

Many of the country's nearly 40 million women in the over-40 age group still mistakenly associate the menopause, which marks the end of their child-bearing years, with the end of their sexual attractiveness and femininity, the report says.

Moving Day Needn't Be Traumatic

BY AP NEWSFEATURES

To the adventurous, a move may bring the challenge of things to come — a new locale, a new home, new friends, new pastimes. But to the insecure homemaker, the prospect of a move can be paralyzing.

The key to a smooth move lies in the planning. Here are some hints to help make moving day as painless as possible.

For a long distance move, all moving companies advise professional packing services. If it's a local move and you're doing some of the packing, be sure the job is well done. Cartons used by professional packers can be obtained at small cost from the mover.

When the moving estimator calls, be sure to show him all articles that will be a part of the move. Check objects in garage or attic that otherwise may bob to surface only on moving day.

Check in advance to make sure you understand the mover's liability under basic transportation rates and that the liability is sufficient to fully protect your shipment.

Get rid of unwanted belongings before moving. Don't pay to move them, only to dispose of them at the other end.

As moving day draws near, tend to the neighborhood necessities: inform the utilities; arrange to stop milk and newspaper deliveries; close checking and saving accounts; close local charge accounts, notify post office to forward mail, pick up or arrange to have forwarded important school and medical records.

On moving day, don't be in the way. Be available if the moving crew has a question. But it's to your benefit to keep children and dogs out of the way and let the crew get about its work.

PEWEE VALLEY, Ky. (AP) Betty Greenwell is smart, shapely, pretty and at 26 possibly the youngest warden of a women's prison in the nation.

She presides over a staff of 32 guards and administrators, eight male trustees and, currently, 60 inmates of the Kentucky Correctional Institution for Women.

The prison is nestled in the rural tranquility of this whiststop about 10 miles from Louisville. There are no signs identifying the huge brick building on a hill. The only clue to the nature of the building is a high steel fence topped by strands of barbed wire.

Miss Greenwell commutes here every weekday from her Louisville apartment.

With her mini-skirted dress, semi-bouffant frosted hair and sparkling greenish eyes, she seems a bit out of place in the drab institution.

But Miss Greenwell is earnest about her job and articulate about life in and out of prison. "Unless you're rendering services to other people, your own goals are selfish," she said. "I think our society is selfish enough as it is. Every one's basic goal is to make money."

Five years ago Miss Greenwell, then a starry-eyed University of Louisville student, began helping for the summer on a psychological survey of residents.

Later she became the first teacher at the prison, working under a warden who changed the institution's outlook from custodial to rehabilitative. "We called it the dynasty of worth and dignity," Miss Greenwell said. "The basic philosophy continues."

Miss Greenwell, who has a master's degree in guidance and counseling, always has found her residents "really fascinating people ... each has an interesting story, although they'll try to con you at first."

Half the population consists of convicted murderers, six of them serving life terms. One-third includes "paper hangers" — forgers and cold check artists.

Almost all the killers had a husband or lover as victim, out of jealousy "or in a moment of gate."

Miss Greenwell said there are few major problems with prisoners. Her main headache, she said, is the inmates' pettiness and bickering.

The "paper hangers" are a tougher breed, she added, who feel gossipy talk leads to verbal or under their strange code they have physical fights.

Doing nothing wrong "if someone was sucker enough" to trust them, basic needs assume an undue importance.

The average stay here is about 18 months, she said. "Most of my two years, although murderers' trouble is usually a matter of 'she said this about me' and such."

Whenever possible Miss Greenwell tries to talk to a resident elsewhere than in her office. "To avoid the mystique and fear that's associated with being called to the warden's office."

Homosexuality is the least of the cells — otherwise reserved for isolation or punishment. (The 10 her worries, Miss Greenwell in-cublocks here aren't as bad as they sound. They have curtains, a tion.

Miss Greenwell is looking forward to breaking some of the invisible barriers in the prison field.

Thoughts Of Astronauts Families

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — No different from the rest of the nation, the proud Apollo 11 wives struggled to find enough adjectives to express their feelings for their men on the moon.

"The evening has been unbelievable perfect," Mrs. Neil Armstrong said today after watching the moon explorations of her husband and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. "It is an honor and privilege to share with my husband, the crew, the Manned Spacecraft Center, the American public and all of mankind this magnificent experience of the beginning of lunar exploration."

Earlier, Mrs. Armstrong expressed her feelings much more simply. "I was tremendously excited," she said. "It was hard to think it was real until the men actually moved," said Mrs. Aldrin. "I felt I was looking at another simulation."

After the moon touchdown Mrs. Aldrin said she wept "because I was so happy."

"I thought it was fantastically marvelous," said Mrs. Michael Collins, whose husband flew a moon orbit in the command capsule while the two other crewmen visited the lunar surface.

"Don't you think he is with them there in spirit?" Mrs. Collins replied when asked if her husband was disappointed because he was not in the landing party.

All Apollo families planned to sleep late today before the next critical phase, blastoff from the moon.

Tuesday night, if everything goes right, the three wives will be honored at a preplanned party given by astronaut Bill Anders.

"The splashdown will be the best part of the flight," Mrs. Aldrin said Sunday at a news conference.

And Mrs. Armstrong did not consider the moon landing the greatest moment of her life.

"That was when we were married," she said.

The astronauts' children shared in Sunday's excitement, and in the praise of their fathers.

"It was pretty exciting," said 12-year-old Ricky Armstrong. "I'm proud of daddy."

"It was very exciting," said 11-year-old Andy Aldrin.

Had Andy any ambitions to become an astronaut?

"Oh Lord, I couldn't go through this twice," Mrs. Aldrin answered.

UNLIKELY WARDEN Betty Greenwell, 26-year-old warden of the Kentucky Correctional Institution for Women, confers with a prisoner.

The majority of our women are married," with children, the settled kind," she said. "I think there is less homosexuality here than in the general population, and our security is tight."

Despite her deep involvement with the prison, Miss Greenwell is aware that she must get away from her work — and people occasionally.

Her favorite pastime is to rent a rowboat, go out in the middle of a lake, "and just meditate."

Sometimes she tries sailing and tennis.

Marriage? "There's someone in the Air Force, but I have no plans yet."

Miss Greenwell is looking forward to breaking some of the invisible barriers in the prison field.

"I'd like to teach or counsel at a men's reformatory," she said. "After all, how are you going to make gentlemen of prisoners if they don't relate to women?"

INSTANT NO-WORK PICNIC... It's as easy as chicken. For a lunch to eat "on the go" that pleases everyone, simply pick up a bucket or box of fried chicken from a drive-in. Bring some crisp celery stalks, carrot sticks and a basket of fruit from your refrigerator to complete the meal, and you're ready to spread that outdoor table.

A number of extra base hits highlighted the opening American League game and very few hits were characteristic of the second battle as Leslie Insurance and First National came through with wins.

Leslie bombed Ziegenhorn in the sixth inning with 11 big runs to set its margin at 11-1 to take the win.

Extra base hits in the game by Lambert, Wilson, Shaner, Collier, and two by Hill.

Hill also received the win from the mound, while Davidson took the loss.

Second contest saw Police get dropped by First National 18-11. Few hits were tallied as Police accumulated two and First National collected only one.

Two of these were doubles, however, as Godwin and Whittaker were credited with the hits.

Whittaker finished with the win for First National and Tidwell was endowed with the loss.

Cahokia, Ill. Wins at Pville

PORTAGEVILLE -- Cahokia, Ill. won three of four games here over the weekend from the Portageville Pony League All-Stars, sweeping a doubleheader Saturday, 7-2 and 12-8.

Sunday afternoon Portageville opened with an 9-8 eighth inning win before losing 6-1.

It was the second trip to Southeast Missouri for Cahokia's Colt 45s, who had an earlier encounter with Parma on the Fourth of July. Parma won the opener 2-1 before bowing 3-2 in the night cap.

Poodles are the most popular purebred dogs in the United States, says The World Almanac. Of a record 722,800 purebred dogs registered in 1965, 207,393 were poodles. The next most popular dogs were German shepherds with 78,241 registered and beagles with 56,128. At the bottom of the scale, there were only three curly-coated retrievers registered and no field spaniels, Sussex spaniels or English foxhounds.

Some Imagination Needed For Rush Repair Service

By SUSAN SHEMWEILL
It is possible to be surrounded by air-conditioners and still have sweat standing on your brow - if you are an electrical repairman hard at work in July.

Repairmen are working overtime on the influx of air-conditioners, fans and irrigation pumps that break down during the summer months because of overuse, or worn-out parts.

Customers brought 15 air-conditioners to Fred and Dick Happe's repair shop Monday. When customers are used to air-cooled homes, they sometimes want repair service faster than it can be done, Fred said.

The most frequent requests for quick service come from impatient men, Dick said.

"Several men have called about their appliances and have said that their wives were sick and would get worse, unless they were near an air-conditioner," he said. The man's own comfort was probably the real reason for the call, Fred laughed.

People with broken air-conditioners are not the only ones who depend on the electrical repairman in the summer. Portageville children were hoping that the Happe brothers would repair quickly the city swimming pool water pump.

"This was one project that got a rush job," Dick said. The repairmen worked on that project late Monday night so that bathers could splash back in the pool the next day.

The brothers repair about 300 air-conditioners during the summer months. They are probably as busy as other local repairmen, and are working 50 or more hours a week on the summer rush.

Repairmen covered with grease and hard at work under bright lights, are often amused by the requests for special favors in finishing the appliance.

"I am just returning from the hospital," and "My children cannot sleep without an air-conditioner," are used very often, Fred said.

So if you are needing your repairman, use a little imagination before you phone. Think of a plea that will keep him grinning while he does the job.

PUTTING SCREWDRIVERS to two air-conditioners, Fred (left) and Dick Happe, repairmen, work on the summer rush of broken cooling appliances.

Aboard the USS Independence - One of the Navy's newest admirals, a native of Sikeston, Mo., earned his stars the hard way - by working up from the rank of seaman.

Capt. Herbert Spencer Matthews, 48, commander of the aircraft carrier, Independence, will receive the rank of admiral officially September 11 at Pensacola, Fla., where he will command the Navy's pilot training program.

Achievement Is Rare
According to other officers aboard the carrier, Matthews is the first admiral in years to have begun as seaman.

"I joined the Navy reserve in 1940 as a seaman," Matthews

Matthews surprised everyone, including college officials, when he was graduated in two years and eight months with a bachelor's degree in mathematics and a Phi Beta Kappa key.

Time Hurried Him
"I had asked the Navy to let me take four years for the regular program, but they said no because they needed pilots," Matthews explained. "I just decided to get the degree before I left."

He was commissioned in 1943 and spent the rest of the war in a bombing squadron in the European theater. He flew 50 combat missions and received the Air Medal.

After World War II, Matthews became a test pilot and was one of the first Navy pilots to receive jet training.

Postwar tours included duty on several aircraft carriers as pilot, ship's officer and carrier division staff member.

Helped Form Group

In 1960, he and five other Navy officers organized the Navy's long-range study group, the Institute of Naval Studies.

"When we submitted our first report," Matthews said, "the Navy said our predictions through 1970 were impractical, if not impossible."

"However, by 1965, they were asking for reprints because most of our predictions were already fact, and the rest were way ahead of schedule in planning."

In his first Vietnam tour in 1964 to 1965 as executive officer on the USS Hancock, Matthews received the Navy Commendation ribbon for strikes against North Vietnam in February, 1965.

Given First Command
In 1967, after a tour on the staff of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Matthews assumed his first command - a dock landing ship, the USS Hermitage.

A Vietnam tour aboard the Hermitage resulted in the Bronze Star medal for Matthews and the Meritorious Unit Citation for the ship.

Matthews assumed command of the Independence September 2, 1968, but preparation for the post began weeks earlier.

"I had not landed on a carrier deck for two or three years," Matthews said, "and wanted the men to know that I still could."

"So, before I went to the Independence, I went back to Pensacola for a refresher course in carrier landings and flew onto the carrier for the change of command ceremony."

Course Not Common
Matthews admitted the refresher course was a little unusual. A seaman commented, "Usually carrier commanders are too old to do things like that."

Matthews is reluctant to discuss another preparatory step, but a sister, Mrs. Lynn Mouchett of Sikeston, is proud of it.

"Right after the flight training," Mrs. Mouchett explained, "Spence went to California to some type of engineering school. He studied the blueprints of the ship, from top to bottom, so he would know what he was commanding.

Strive for Betterment

"The Navy always gives officers a few weeks in between commands and most use them for vacation, But Spence would rather work at being a better commander."

Matthews' "follow-me" technique of command has won deep respect from his crew although, at times, it has embarrassed them.

"I challenged the Marine detachment aboard ship to a standing broad jump contest last month to emphasize the need for physical fitness," Matthews related. "At stake was an extra day of liberty (leave) for them."

"All they had to do was have a majority of the 70 marines on board ship beat me. I think it hurt their pride when only nine marines could do it."

A marine, when asked about the story, admitted it was true. "But that's just like the Old Man, he's always beating us or trying to beat us at something."

Nixon Birth Control Plan Draws Praise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Population and sex information experts have praised President Nixon's proposal to make free birth control advice and contraceptive devices available within five years to all low-income American women of child-bearing age.

Many church officials deferred comment on the proposal until they could study it in detail, but a Roman Catholic spokesman said such a program would put too much pressure on the poor.

"There is an implicit pressure in receiving from the same hand both a welfare check and advice on what to do to keep the family down," said Msgr. Hugh Curran, director of the Roman Catholic archdiocesan family life bureau in New York.

"The real question is one of freedom, not of contraception," Msgr. Curran said, adding that he did not think it was "the proper role of the government to embark on a contraceptive program."

The Rt. Rev. C. Kilmer Myers, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California, said, "The position of the Episcopal Church is that population control is the most vital cog in the approach to the world's environmental problems, and the President has taken a step in the right direction."

Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher, president of Planned Parenthood, said the proposal was the "magnificent culmination" of a federal government policy which evolved over several years.

"It certainly should make possible babies by choice rather than by chance for all Americans irrespective of financial or any other considerations," he said.

Dr. Mary Calderone, executive director of the Sex Information and Education Council of the United States (SIECUS), called the message "a tremendous step forward toward peace, peace because population pressures engender hostility, locally and nationally."

An Indianapolis woman, 36, with eight children and a husband making $36-a-week takehome pay, said, "I wish somebody had told me about birth control before now. It's too late to do me much good, but it will help my daughters."

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Apollo 11 astronauts left behind one of the most expensive junk yards in the universe when they left off from the moon today.

They discarded almost $1 million worth of cameras, tools and breathing equipment up there. The cameras included the black and white television camera that captured their moon walk for the world. This camera cost the National Aeronautics and Space Administration $250,000.

Also in the litter—a Kodak worth $50,000 and a Hasselblad camera that cost $11,176.

After returning to the moon lander's cabin, the astronauts opened the hatch and dumped the back packs which kept them alive during their walk.

Each of these units, called the Portable Life Support System, cost NASA $300,000.

Moon tools designed especially for the astronauts added to the junk pile.

Tongs, a scoop, a long-handled hammer, an extension handle and other items were dropped when the spacemen were through with them. These tools cost $45,000.

Largest item to be left was the descent stage of the lunar module. NASA is reluctant to put a cost on this two-ton piece of metal since it's only part of a lunar module that cost $41 million.

Even if the spacecraft stage hadn't been left on the moon, it could never have returned to earth, it has no heat shield.

An American flag was left on the moon. The space agency doesn't know how much it cost and doesn't want to.

NASA bought a large number of flags from different manufacturers, a spokesman said, and then removed all labels. One was selected at random.

"We've no idea which one is up there," said the spokesman.

"This was so no company could make a big thing of their flag being on the moon."

A silicone wafer bearing electronically-reduced messages of goodwill from 78 countries cost NASA nothing. A private firm produced it at no cost to the government.

A plaque bearing the autographs of the astronauts and of President Nixon couldn't be priced. It was made in the metal shop at NASA of materials already at hand.

Directors of the Sikeston Production Credit Association will attend the PCA District Directors' Conference to be held in St. Louis, Missouri, on July 28 and 29 at the Sheraton Jefferson Hotel, according to Thatcher Seism, manager of the association.

Making the trip to St. Louis will be Lester H. Bishop, East Prairie; Paul Bradley, New Madrid; Charles G. Causey, Bloomfield; Louis Kalkbrenner, Poplar Bluff; Otto Lape, Marble Hill; Pervis Sebaugh, Daisy; and Thatcher Seism, Wallace E. Waters and Kenneth D. Williams of Sikeston.

The theme of the conference this year will be "NOW SET YOUR GOALS FOR NEW HORIZONS." Approximately 1000 people will attend.

CHARLESTON — A $6,000 boots, a fishing reel, fishing barn, owned by Leslie Fox, Jr., plugs, and some wrenches were New Bethel, was destroyed by stolen from his pick-up truck. The articles were valued at $500. Thieves broke the left rear window of the truck to gain entry.

In City Court Saturday, Judge July Shelby charged Charles E. Wood $16 for disturbing the peace.

Lillie Mae Jones, 37, was fined $18 for disturbing the peace and destroying property.

Monday, in City Court, Henry Oliver George, 49, was fined $15 for disorderly conduct, and Marshall George, 39, forfeited a $15 bond for public intoxication.

At 9 a.m. Saturday, Gary Thornbough, 706 South Fifth St., reported a tool box, rubber

Many May Get Lower Tax Levy

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Public Expenditure Survey said today some 1,000 local governments in Missouri can lower their property levies this year because of substantial increases in assessed valuation.

In 38 counties, the taxpayers' organization reported after a study, the assessed valuation has risen more than 10 per cent in the past year. They ranged from Shannon County, with a valuation boost of 10.5 per cent, to Madison County, with an increase of 78.6 per cent.

A 1965 law provides that whenever assessed valuation is found to be up by more than 10 per cent after the property tax levies have been set, "taxing authorities shall immediately revise and lower the rates of levy to the extent necessary to produce from all taxable properties substantially the same amount of taxes as previously estimated to be produced by the original levy."

Local governments, the survey said in its study report, "should apply tax rates only to increased valuations which will yield the revenues to finance their work loads and no more. Levying of tax rates on increased valuations that will produce windfalls above carefully determined budgetary needs places an unnecessary burden upon taxpayers."

In Berkley Heights, N.J., Mrs. Joseph Kopechne, the victim's mother, said her daughter's "admiration of the Kennedys was what took her to Washington to begin with."

"She was pretty well wrapped up in politics," Mrs. Kopechne added.

In Washington, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he had deep sympathy for the Kennedy family. Mansfield added that he had every confidence in Kennedy.

He said of the tragedies that have beset the Kennedy family: "They have some kind of star, I guess."

Kennedy, last of the four Kennedy brothers, narrowly escaped death once before. Five years ago, he suffered a broken back in a plane crash.

Astronauts Return to Orbit From Moon Surface

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Neil A. Armstrong and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. blasted off safely from the moon and into lunar orbit today, beginning the complex maneuvers to link up with their mother ship. They left behind their footprints in the lunar dust and in the history of man.

Their liftoff began 69 seconds after the command ship, with Michael Collins its lone passenger, passed 69 miles above Tranquility Base. Seven minutes later, they entered orbit and a 3½ hour chase began.

If all went well, the two ships would link up at 5:32 p.m. EDT. and head for home at 12:57 a.m. Tuesday.

Their thrust lander, which settled them onto the surface Sunday for a 21½ hour stay, after wake-up, served them, too, at liftoff. They left behind the spindly-legged shoot them into lunar orbit to lower stage, their launching chase down Michael Collins, platform, as a permanent memento of July 20, 1969 - the day man landed on the moon.

It was the first time a rocket had lifted anything from the moon.

Mission control awakened the moonmen shortly after 11 a.m. following a six-hour rest period. Instruments which monitored Armstrong during the night indicated he slept fitfully. There is only one set of biomedical instruments in the cabin so Aldrin was not monitored.

Sleeping in the cramped quarters of the LM is difficult and Aldrin reported: "Neil has been lying on the engine cover and I curled up on the floor."

Checking of systems and switch settings for the critical liftoff was the No. 1 priority Sunday for a 21½ hour stay, after wake-up.

A successful liftoff would shoot them into lunar orbit to lower stage, their launching chase down Michael Collins, platform, as a permanent in the Apollo 11 command ship. Once linked up, they plan to fire themselves back toward earth early Tuesday, ending a space odyssey in which they etched their names beside those of history's great explorers, Columbus, Balboa, Magellan, da Gama and Byrd.

Through the magic of television, an estimated 500 million people around the world had a ringside seat to man's greatest adventure.

It was unforgettable.

Armstrong climbed through the LM hatch and started backing down a nine-rung ladder. On the second rung from the bottom, he opened a compartment, exposing a television camera.

The picture was black and white and somewhat jerky, but it recorded history.

Among scientists, there was elation that the crew had landed in an area with a variety of rocks, a treasure that held at least the hope of a rich payoff in the search to learn more about moon and earth.

As Armstrong planted his size 9½ left boot on the powdery surface at 10:56 p.m. Sunday, he spoke words that will be remembered for all time: "That's one small step for man, a giant leap for mankind."

The camera trained on Aldrin as he stepped on the far shore 20 minutes later and exclaimed: "Beautiful! Beautiful! Magnificent desolation."

There were other memorable utterances during the day of high adventure.

There were Armstrong's words when Eagle separated from the command ship to start the dangerous descent: "The Eagle is flying."

There were Armstrong's—and man's—first words from the moon's surface after touchdown at 4:18 p.m.: "Houston ...

Tranquility base here. The Eagle has landed."

Or when Aldrin, a deeply religious man, relayed this message to the world shortly after the landing: "This is the LM pilot. I'd like to take this opportunity to ask every person listening, whoever, wherever they may be, to pause for a moment and contemplate the events of the past few hours and to give thanks in his or her own way."

They planted an American flag and saluted it, but made it plain they came to the moon as ambassadors for all mankind.

They unveiled a stainless steel plaque bearing these words: "Here men from planet earth first set foot upon the moon, July, 1969. A.D. We came in peace for all mankind."

They left on the moon a disc on which messages from the leaders of 76 nations had been recorded. They will return to earth with them the flags of 136 nations, including Russia. And they left behind mementos for three Americans and two Russians who died for the cause of space exploration.

The theme was carried through when President Nixon placed an extraordinary radio call to Armstrong and Aldrin as they strolled the surface.

As they flanked the American flag, Nixon said, "I can't tell you how proud we all are of what you have done for every American. This has to be the proudest day of our lives."

"For people all over the world I am sure that they too join with Americans in recognizing what an immense feat this is. Because of what you have done the heavens have become part of man's world..."

"For one priceless moment in the whole history of man," the President continued, "all of the people on this earth are truly one."

One in their pride in what you have done, one in our prayers that you will return safely to earth."

Although at times it appeared they were on a romp in the park, Armstrong and Aldrin carried out a true exploration of the moon.

Several times they tested their ability to move about in the one-sixth gravity field of the moon, loping like antelopes, and bouncing like kangaroos.

"It's not difficult at all moving about in one-sixth 'G,'" commander Armstrong reported, as he flashed before the camera like a graceful gazelle.

The camera was mounted 40 or 50 feet away from the LM so that earthlings could watch their entire period outside—2 hours, 14 minutes for Armstrong and one hour, 44 minutes for Aldrin.

One of those who could not watch on television was Collins, flying the lonely vigil overhead, awaiting the return of his companions. He checked with mission control occasionally for a progress report on the surface activity, but he generally was a forgotten man to the world.

Armstrong and Aldrin gave vivid descriptions of their wild and wondrous world and collected two boxes of rock and soil samples which they will return to earth for analysis.

The moonmen also deployed two scientific instruments on the moon to relay data long after they left. They were a seismometer to measure moonquakes and other disturbances and a small mirror to reflect earth laser beams fired from California back to earth.

The sensitive seismometer, monitored on earth, picked up the footsteps of the astronauts and recorded a thump when they turned litterbug and dumped a bag of unneeded equipment overboard after returning to their landing vehicle.

"The surface appears to be very, very fine grained," Armstrong commented after his first steps. "It's almost like powder. The dirt adheres in fine layers like powdered charcoal to the sole and insides of my boots. I only go in a fraction of an inch, maybe one-eighth of an inch. I see the footprints of my boots and the treads in the fine, sandy particles."

He panned the camera over thousands of small craters that pocked the surface and at the horizon accentuated against a pure black sky.

"It has starry beauty all its own," he said. "It's much like the high desert of the United States. But it's very pretty out here."

He reported the surface was generally soft and cohesive but that he occasionally hit a hard spot when probing with his shovel-like sample collector.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Apollo 11 astronauts may be bringing back some water from the moon.

Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. drove a hollow tube into the moon's surface during his lunar walk. He then removed the tube, bringing up a core sample of lunar soil.

He told mission control just after withdrawing the tube that the soil seemed "almost wet."

If the dirt indeed is wet, it may mean there is life in some form on the moon.

Scientists have said that one of the main reasons they think the moon is a dead planet is the believed absence of water.

Air Controllers to Resign

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three thousand air traffic controllers at major airports across the nation plan to resign when Apollo 11 returns to earth, a spokesman says.

The prediction came in response to plans by the Federal Aviation Administration to punish controllers who staged a nationwide slowdown last month to protest what they said was dangerous airway congestion.

Russell G. Sommer, western regional director of the 7,200-member Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization, said Saturday that unless the FAA withdraws its punishment threat, the controllers will resign from their jobs, perhaps grounding all commercial flights.

Unless 11 aspirants file before the July 25 deadline, no first primary will be needed from the general election polls.

Already entered are incumbents Mayor Lloyd Hogan, whose post was terminated after the city manager election, and councilmen David Brunley, Dr. A. L. Weaver, K. G. Whittington and Freemont McTigue. Newcomers include Ernest Douglas, Jack Siers and Jack Adkinson.

NEW MADRID -- Rosie Lee Gilmore, 25, is being held in the New Madrid County Jail and will be charged with felonious assault in connection with the shooting of Sammy Claiborne, 26, Sunday night.

Claiborne was shot one time in the stomach with a .22 caliber pistol after the two had reportedly been quarreling. The wounded man was taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital in Sikeston where he is reported in fair condition.

The shooting about midnight Sunday at the Harlem Cafe on Russell Street, operated by Horace Cobb. Deputy City Marshal Shorty Price made the investigation and arrest.

Children Expected Moon Monsters

By Carol Werneck and Susan Shemwell

Where people gathered this morning in Sikeston -- to drink coffee, meet friends or to swing on playground monkey bars -- the conversation included the adventures of the first two men on the moon.

Live television coverage of the moon walk yesterday, brought people close to the maneuvers of Edwin Aldrin and Neil Armstrong on the Apollo 11 mission. The astronauts' comments and physical conditions were monitored by television viewers during two hours and forty minutes while the portable life support system (PLSS) was in effect.

Initial emotions of joy, excitement and fear experienced last night were compared and discussed this morning.

Third and fourth grade summer school students at Southwest Elementary School talked about the appearance of the astronauts and imagined their own trips into outer space.

"The astronauts looked like monsters with those suits on. They had helmets, gloves, boots and all of that stuff on, and underneath there was just plain old underwear," Lee Edward Brown said pulling back on the ropes of a swing.

"I went outside and looked at the moon, and I saw two little men walking around," Will Redd added.

The children imagined communities on the moon, which may be colonized in their lifetimes.

"Just think, we may be floating to the stores," Candy Waddell, a little blonde perched on the jungle jim, said.

"I would like to float for awhile, I get tired of walking all of the time," Tamera Bryant said.

Children's fantasies may become realities as earthmen travel to other planets, and these children can imagine a different type of life.

"I was waiting last night to see some moon creatures with great big eyeballs," Janice Powell said. She said that the

Kennedy Charged With Leaving Accident Scene

EDGARTOWN, Mass. (AP) — Police today filed a formal complaint charging Sen. Edward M. Kennedy with leaving the scene of an accident.

The complaint stems from a weekend wreck on Chappaquiddick Island, adjacent to Martha's Vineyard on which this small resort town is located. A young woman was killed and Kennedy injured, though apparently not seriously.

The complaint was filed by Police Chief Domenic J. Arena with the District Court Clerk Thomas A. Teller.

Arena said that an Edgartown lawyer, Richard J. McCarran, had informed the clerk he is representing Kennedy. McCarran asked for a hearing, to which Kennedy is entitled before any summons is issued.

Teller set July 28 for the hearing, which will be held in the Edgartown courthouse.

A crowd of several hundred persons, mostly tourists, filled the street outside the red brick, century-old courthouse as Arena crossed the street from his headquarters in the Town Hall to visit the clerk.

Arena said Sunday he is "firmly convinced there was no negligence involved" in the accident.

"But the matter of the time period after the accident..." Arena said, "There is, in my opinion, a violation concerning going from the scene, leaving the scene."

The mishap occurred between 11 p.m. Friday and 1 a.m. Saturday as Kennedy was driving Mary Jo Kopechne, 28, of Washington, to a landing to catch the ferry back to the Vineyard.

The car skidded off a narrow bridge and landed bottomup in eight feet of water. Kennedy escaped with what a physician said was a mild concussion. Miss Kopechne, former secretary to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., was trapped in the vehicle and drowned.

Kennedy went to the police 10 hours after the accident. The car had been found by then; two boys going fishing saw its wheels beneath the water.

In a police statement, Kennedy said he was left dazed by the accident. He said he tried repeatedly to rescue Miss Kopechne, but was not able to find her.

The 37-year-old Massachusetts Democrat and Miss Kopechne had been at a dinner party at a private home on Chappaquiddick attended by several of Kennedy's friends and political associates. Kennedy said he returned to the home after the accident and climbed into the rear seat of a car parked outside.

"I then asked someone to bring me back to Edgartown," he continued. "I remember walking around for a period of time and then going back to my hotel room. When I fully realized what had happened this morning I immediately went to the police."

The time was 10 a.m. Saturday.

Arena said Sunday he already had sent Kennedy notice via registered mail that a complaint was being filed against him. He said that would be followed by formal notice of the complaint, after which Kennedy would have 24 hours in which to request a hearing. If no hearing was sought, Arena added, a formal summons would be issued automatically.

Kennedy and his wife Joan remained in seclusion Sunday at his home on Squaw Island, a short distance off Hyannis Port on Cape Cod where the Kennedy family compound is located. A contingent of police kept newsmen and sightseers at a distance.

In Washington, a spokesman for the senator said he would have a statement to make in connection with the accident for the time being.

Dr. Robert D. Watt of Hyannis Port, who saw the senator at his home Saturday afternoon, said Kennedy received "a blow on the head, but he seems to be all right." He said he prescribed a few days of bed rest and added that he had spoken by telephone with Kennedy Sunday and believed him to be improved.

Meanwhile, Dunn Gifford, a Kennedy aide, obtained the necessary release papers Sunday and arranged to have Miss Kopechne's body flown to Pennsylvania for burial Tuesday in Larkville. There was no autopsy, but blood samples were taken from the victim and sent to the state police laboratory for

Police reported burglars took $3,859 worth of merchandise from the Bargain Store, 132 West Front, early Saturday morning, or late Friday night.

Freda Grant, an employee, discovered the theft when she opened the store at 8:30 a.m. Saturday. Mrs. Grant said entrance to the store was gained by kicking in the back door. A quick inventory by Mrs. Grant disclosed the following items were taken: 412 mens dress and sports slacks, 12 Glen Eagle jackets, 54 mens walking shorts, 10 mens sports coats, 15 mens dress suits, 4 mens top coats, 3 womens dress suits, 5 womens dresses, 14 pairs of mens shoes, 12 cigarette lighters, 18 mens watches, and one carton of Dorsey's bathroom tissue.

Broulin had put his wallet into the glove compartment of his 1960 Buick, parked on Fekler street, and fell asleep. When he awoke he discovered the money and papers were missing.

Two cars received minor damage in an accident Saturday on east Malone. John W. McWhirer, Bertrand, and James Edward Sturmes, Sikeston, were the drivers.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!
The fish fries of today do not seem as interesting as they did when we were a boy living in Paris, Missouri.

Those of us who were allowed to go along with the men, left early in the morning, with seines, ice, tubs, knives, salt and the cast iron kettle, bigger than a bushel basket, plus a big 25 pound can of lard.

We wagoned out to one of the branches of Salt river, and while the men were seeming for the fish we boys gathered up the drift wood for the fire and cleared the rubbish up around the bank so that when the women came with the rest of the food and the lumber in the wagon for the table and benches they would have a nice clean place to get the meal ready.

After the fish were caught, cleaned and fileted, a preacher with the crowd would hold a short service and then we all would lay to, men, women and children.

Seem like to me that there was always more pies and cakes than we could all eat, which to a growing boy, was out of this world.

Now we could eat the fish and corn bread but have to pass up the pie and cake.

Well we'll quit slobbering at the mouth and go down to the Elks Club and order an individual cat fish dinner.

So now the California attorney general proposes a voluntary fund to fight crime. It's always comforting to reflect that any problem can be solved by passing a law or collecting some money.

Two members of the new 91st Congress have received a quick introduction to the current situation in the nation's capital. Freshman Rep. Shirley Chisholm (D-N.Y.), the nation's first Negro congresswoman, returned from her Brooklyn district to find her apartment had been broken into and $540 worth of clothing stolen. And our own favorite "freshman," Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater, went to his hotel basement garage to drive off in his rented gold Mustang, only to find the auto had disappeared.

BE YOUR OWN SAFETY ENGINEER
Industry has done a remarkable job of reducing work-related accidents. Although there is still much to be done, National Safety Council statistics prove that - on the average - a worker is several times more safe in an industrial plant than on a farm. Industry's eviable record can, for the most part, be attributed to well organized and executed safety programs under the direction of trained safety engineers.

Few farms have enough employees to justify the employment of a "safety man." Every farm, however, can and should have someone with the responsibility of alerting other family members to hazards and seeing that safety rules are followed. This may be father, mother or one of the older youngsters.

Many plants require employee attendance at safety meetings. How about setting aside the after supper hour on the first Monday of each month for a family safety conference? Let each family member report on "near misses" he may have had. Discuss what can be done to prevent a recurrence. And do it.

Families working together can reduce the tragic toll of farm accidents if only you and - other members of your family - will be your own safety engineer... not just during Farm Safety Week, buy during all 52 weeks of the year.

We really regret the withdrawal of the Delta Community Hospital from the United Fund. We can appreciate their portion being chairman of the Salvation Army Committee for Sikeston.

Failure to meet the goal year after year has placed the participating agencies in a bind for funds.

Not making a separate drive as the agencies in the United Fund are supposed not to do places some of them in the red as is the Sikeston Salvation Army Committee spent more money in 1969 than it received from the United Fund and the help received from the Ministerial Alliance carried us over the shortage.

Carry moral responsibility while driving or YOU might be carried.

Fallibility. In Port Jervis, N. Y., the repair man called in to fix the cigarette machine at police headquarters found it jammed by ten phony coins. In Powell, Wyo., Patrolman Warren Schrofel, after lecturing to 400 high-school students on traffic problems, paid a $2 fine for parking near a hydrant.

SAFETY HASN'T KEPT PACE ON FARM, PRESIDENT NOTES

President Nixon, is signing a proclamation designating July 20-26 as Farm Safety Week, noted that although American agriculture has made great strides in production it nevertheless remains the nation's third most hazardous industry.

Mr. Nixon stated that "the strong hands and management skills of our farm people have dramatically increased farm production," and observed that "American agriculture has advanced more in the past 50 years than in all prior history."

"A third as many farmers," Mr. Nixon noted, "are feeding twice as many Americans today as in 1920.

"In addition, America is the world's largest exporter of agricultural products, and our abundance is a powerful force for world peace."

While their accomplishments have dramatically increased production, Mr. Nixon said, "our farm people have suffered a tragic toll of accidents."

The President emphasized that agriculture continues to rank third among American industries in accidental death rate.

"Thousands of farm residents," Mr. Nixon said, "are fatally injured every year and hundreds of thousands disabled. The dollar cost to the nation approaches $2 billion, but the cost in pain, grief and suffering cannot be measured."

"This terrible waste demands our urgent attention," Mr. Nixon said. "It can be sharply reduced if everyone working in agriculture makes safety an integral part of management planning, part of every job and every activity, both on and off the job."

Mr. Nixon called on all farm families, and those persons and groups serving or allied with agriculture, to use all possible means for minimizing accident losses at work, in homes, at recreation, and on public roads.

Some people's virtues are harder to get along with than other people's vices.

Most of the men at the coffee table agree that they don't like to hear women using four-letter words - especially such as cash, cars, rent or loan!

MINI-BIKES AND THE LAW

The motorized mini-bike and their four-wheeled counterpart - the go kart - are becoming more of a menace with each passing day. They seem to be uniquely a problem generated by our affluence. Many of the youths of past generations could not afford the luxury of a bicycle of the standard self-propelled type, much less one with a motor. Most youngsters in our day hard to work long hours at odd jobs, to earn enough cash to buy a bike so that they might have a newspaper route to earn more money for other wants.

Now we are confronted with six-year-olds who ride on motorized mini-bikes in violation of the law. This actually happened in Denver, Colorado. In this particular case the bike did not belong to the child, but to a 21-year-old uncle. We cite this example for another reason: mini-bikes and go karts are becoming a real safety hazard. They are a cause of real headaches for law enforcement officers.

It is true that the vehicles cannot be operated on the public roadways in most states. But the fact is that they are being operated in that manner anyway. The police are trying to stop this, but there appears to be a great deal of parental apathy involved. How many children could buy one of the vehicles and keep it without the knowledge of their parents? How many parents who buy their children these potentially dangerous gadgets instruct the children in their proper usage and the places in which they may be safely and legally operated?

The principal reason for not allowing these conveyances on the roads is the safety of the operator; it is difficult for a driver of a full-size automobile to see the bikes and karts when they scoot along beside his car. It is also dangerous for children to be handling the motor fuels necessary for the operation of these motors. Just read through the safety procedures for filling the tank of a gas motor; this fact becomes quite apparent.

There is a certain thrill for the youth who is approaching the age at which he may begin to drive. This puts him at the threshold of manhood. Our youths are growing up at quite an accelerated rate in too many ways. Let us keep this one privilege - driving a car - intact; there is a lot of logical reason for its retention. We would hate to see the dangers inherent in these mini-vehicles brought home graphically by tragedy. The time to move is now and the responsibility is on the parents' shoulders.

Lee Bowman says: "We're told the employed look forward to the joys of retirement and the retired look back to the days of employment."

Our friend Otis Bryant, retired juglist and steelworker says: "people sometimes even make a failure of trying to be tough."

Robbie Burns said it right well, too, in "Tam O'Shanter:"

But pleasures are like poppies spread
You seize the flow'r, its bloom is shed;
Or like the snow falls in the river
A moment white, then melts forever . . .

If a teacher whips a pupil, the pupil's mother has a good deal to say about her child having always been delicate and unlike other children.

What a happy world this would be if everyone enjoyed his work as much as an auctioneer seems to.

NEW YORK (AP) - Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

The U.S. population is growing older. Back around 1900 only four per cent of the people were over 65. But government figures indicate that by 1975 one in 10 persons - some 20 million - will be in the senior citizens bracket.

Speaking of age, here's a novel way to classify yourself. If the first love letter you wrote took a 4-cent stamp, you're still a young. If it had a 3-cent stamp, you're middle-aged. If it had a 2-cent stamp, you're ancient.

Are the frustrations of life in crowded cities a major cause of heart attacks? Dr. Robert W. Wissler of the University of Chicago doubts it. A study he made of caged and uncaged monkeys found little statistical difference in their cholesterol levels and artery-hardening rate.

Thin people are more likely than fat people to be bitten by mosquitoes. The reason: they generally have a higher metabolism and emit more heat, which attracts the insects.

The open road is becoming more deadly. Every 11 minutes around the clock an American man, woman, or child is killed in a highway accident. Every nine seconds someone is hurt badly enough to be disabled for more than a day.

HIGHER TAXES CAUSE INFLATION

The buying power of the U.S. dollar has gone down by 12 cents during the last four years. Further still, in terms of purchasing power, the 1939 U.S. dollar is now worth only 39 cents. Inflation is approaching the galloping - spiral level in economic annals.

The day of reckoning for the Keynesian "unlimited money" theorists is fastly approaching since the fiscal manipulation of taxes and money supply has nearly reached the point of self-destruction. It has proved true in other countries in the past and is proving true in the U.S. today that higher taxes to deflate actually add to costs already under pressure from higher costs and higher taxes. This is none other than a disguised inflationary spiral which our Statesmen have failed to

By Drew Pearson

July 19, 1969

Dear George:
When I asked Aunt Luvie whether I should go all the way down to Cape Kennedy to see only 15 seconds of the moon launching, she said: "Of course. I'll give you a chance to write your grandchildren about it for years."

So I went. I was glad I went. And to fulfill her predilection I am writing to you.

Everybody and his brother was there, ranging from ex-president Johnson, who unlike Harry Truman has now clammed up on the press, having sold his memories exclusively to CBS; to Frank Sinatra and Harry Golden, to Gov. Docking of Kansas, who had just flown in from a goodwill tour of South America where he received the opposite kind of a reception than Gov. Rockefeller; to Mary Roebeling, the New Jersey banker, who had just come back from inspecting a 10,000-year-old city in Turkey.

NASA had also invited mayors and governors, congressmen and diplomats. And one thing the diplomats remarked on was the fact that there was no secrecy whatsoever. Anyone could take photograph anywhere. There were hundreds of thousands of people jamming the roads, sleeping out on the beaches all night-completely the opposite of the Russian space center which no outsider has even entered.

-USA-Second Class

Power?~

But the most impressive thing about the moon launch was the teamwork between industry and government. Instead of the usual backseat driving from Congress and the sniping by the politicians, there was complete cooperation between everyone.

We were so anxious to beat the Russians to the moon that the District of Columbia have their backs up against the people of Washington and say there will be no subway until Washington builds more concrete back in 1953, when Russia was ahead in the space race, which was called "USA - second class power?" It made a lot of congressmen, including Sen. Lyndon Johnson, mad. They kept vowing that the USA was not going to become a second-class power.

At and Cape Kennedy last week we prove that we weren't at least in outer space. But in inner space, the big question is: Can we apply the same teamwork to solving our urgent problems at home that we applied to reaching to the moon? If we don't, if we don't clean up our water supply and purify our air and stop the decay of our big cities, we might very well become a second-class power.

For instance, we have been talking about cleaning up one of our most beautiful rivers-the Potomac. We've been talking about it for 20 years. But we can't supply the teamwork to do it. Factories on the upper Potomac and cities along its banks keep pouring sewage and waste into the river so nobody can even swim in it. When I first came to Washington the swimming was fine; but not anymore.

There are scores of similar places in the United States-such as Lake Erie-which must be cleaned up if this nation is to have enough water to survive. But we can't get industry to cooperate with the cities, or the states to cooperate with the federal government, with the same teamwork that got us to the moon.

Right here in Washington we have an outrageous case of bickering instead of teamwork over traffic. The nation's capital very much needs a subway to curtail auto traffic and connect the suburbs with the city. But the congressional who control the District of Columbia have their backs up against the people of Washington and say there will be no subway until Washington builds more concrete throughways.

-Pocketbook Interest-

Properly evaluate for 40 years. In my book ALPACA REVISITED, beginning on page 79, a discussion explaining this problem of tax - fed inflation can be found. A plan was presented which not only guided and circumscribed the taxing power of the Senate, but also specified the avenues of taxation and their limits, pointed out the amount of taxation which can be imposed by the Senate to defray the costs of national existence, and defined the tax provisions for school districts, municipalities and special districts called for revenue from usual tax sources.

Today, everything in our economy is controlled by the taxing authority, but there is little control of that taxing authority. If a rational government can recognize the need to control a few causes of inflation, then it should not avoid facing all such causes, even though its own erroneous actions have fed them. HLH.

Doc. Duncan Says

Six years is a long time to keep the secrets that fish and people was being slowly, poisoned by chemicals, St. Louis Post Dispatch clipping June 10th, 1969.

Looks like there should be a crash program to come up with an antidote, to treat water and soil contaminated, also the public should know the symptoms of these poisons and order to seek treatment when necessary,

Some of these congressmen are the tools of the highway lobby. They play hand-in-glove with the concrete interests, the tire, gasoline and trucking lobbies. They are putting pocketbook interest ahead of the public interest-which is just the opposite of the teamwork which we developed to reach the moon.

On take another case. Right now the trucking lobby is trying to get a bill through Congress which would almost double the size of trailer trucks on the highways. It would permit huge trucks conglomerates 70 feet long and 102 inches wide to crowd the highways, making it difficult for the average motorist to pass. Yet it was the average motorist who largely paid the taxes to build the highways.

The railroads must pay taxes on their depots and their roadbeds. However, the trucking lobby now wants to take freight away from the railroads without paying the equivalent in taxes.

To get its legislation passed, the trucking lobby paid $40,000 in campaign contributions to key members of Congress - $3,000 to George Fallon of Baltimore; $2,000 to Sam Friedel, another Baltimore democrat; $3,000 to John Kluczynski of Chicago, among others.

I didn't mean to give you a lecture. But when I see the big cities neglected, our rivers getting more and more poisoned and the air we breathe getting more and more filled with auto exhaust, I wonder whether the day may not come when we'll have to go and live on the moon.

Unfortunately, this will be your problem. It's not a fair inheritance to give you, but the older generation has fouled it up so badly that I doubt that we can ever solve it. With a fresh approach, perhaps you can.

Be careful of those big snakes and alligators down there on the Amazon.

WHO MURDERED MBOYA? A Letter From The Grave

Washington, D.C.: - It was a quiet Sunday in downtown, quite metropolitan Nairobi, Kenya. The white "settlers" were in their highlands. The black Bantus were in their "locations." At noontime a 28-year-old handsome African, reminiscent of Sidney Poitier, drove his Land Rover to the entrance of the legendary New Stanley Hotel. An American foreign correspondent got aboard and they drove to a huge Quonset-hut type "hall" for a massive union meeting.

I am that newsmen. The African was Tom Mboya, then chief of the Kenya Federation of Labor.

Ten years later, almost to the very hour, he was shot down in American Mafia style. He was dead before he hit the sidewalk. It's no secret in the world intelligence community that the Kenyan authorities believe Tom was murdered by the same Chinese Communist apparatus operating under a Dar es Salaam, Tanzania cover.

That "apparatus" actually functions in Zanzibar. It has been attempting to infiltrate the Kenyan army. It has poured tens of thousands of dollars into pivotal Kenya to bribe and finance Tom Mboya's enemies. It has attempted to finance a network of publications and broadcast facilities.

Mboya, who was Minister of Economic Planning and Development, was expected to succeed aging little President Jomo Kenyatta.

Tom had started as the best friend the democratic West had in all of Africa - a continent as huge as Russia and China combined. As we corresponded, his views changed. What sort of president would he have made? What would he have done with the nation which is the most influential in East Africa? Some weeks ago, I wrote asking him for a cross-run on his full spectrum of his views. He wrote me the following letter just before he was gunned down. I offer it as a reflection of the views of African leaders some of us have helped gain power, only to find that a friend in power is a friend lost. Here is the letter exactly as he wrote it:

"Dear Victor:
"Reading what other people write about African countries is rather like looking through the wrong end of a telescope at a familiar scene, or perhaps seeing it in a distorting mirror. One of the main things which the people of America and the people of Africa have in common is great ignorance about one another. In my visits to the United States I have noticed that many people seem to think our continent is in a state of more or less continuous anarchy and tribal warfare.

"Africa has generally been wary of becoming too closely involved with the United States. Partly this is due to our determination to steer our non-aligned course and create our own institutions to suit our needs. We have seen in South America and in Eastern Europe what happens to the independence of small nations which allow themselves to become client states.

"The much-publicized activities of the CIA in various countries have further helped to establish the stereotype of the ugly American. Various revelations about the Agency's operations have created a situation in which people and organizations who innocently established contact with different American personalities, foundations and organizations have been exposed to great personal embarrassment. In turn this means that people have become very cautious and reluctant to associate with any American organizations for fear that such bodies may later be proved to have CIA connections! This has helped to increase suspicion of anything American.

"It is taken for granted that relations between America and Africa will cool during the time of the present Administration, as long as the reduced level of aid continues. Some Americans may ask why countries which presume to criticise them should receive any help. Within any civilised community or state the stronger, abler members recognise their duty to help their weaker brethren. Aid from richer to poorer countries is a step towards civilised international behaviour. In fact, such help does not only benefit the recipients. Aid a most effective way of helping the donor countries to promote their own trade and of fostering a world order in which their own economies may grow and prosper. The old notion that the developing countries are just sitting round waiting for aid is dead. Developing countries are doing more for themselves than is usually realised. The motto now among African states is 'self-reliance in a dependent world economy!'

It is our belief that aid must gradually be replaced by trade. This is the context within which aid should be viewed and we reject the paternalistic postures of spokesmen of developed nations who often pretend that aid is a form of charity, a cleansing ceremony for one's sins to society.

"I mentioned earlier that the new nations of Africa want to build their own institutions based upon ideologies to suit their own needs. This does not mean that we reject the experience of others out of hand. All the same, I think it is fair to say that American experience often seems irrelevant to our needs. In most cases where we do see a parallel, the American experience is more likely to be seen as a warning and a negative example of what to avoid. Through my activities as leader of Kenya's Trade Union Movement in the years leading to independence I have many friends in the American labour movement. I hope they will not take it personally when I say that we see the American movement as a pattern of what to avoid. Moreover, in our new countries, where organised labour is a highly privileged minority, attitudes and methods developed in the laissez faire capitalist atmosphere of the United States have little relevance.

"Talking of capitalism, Americans may be surprised to know that some of our critics at home in Kenya have accused our Government of being too capitalist, too American in attitude! But I don't think that many people in America would agree with the socialist ownership and government controls over commerce and industry which we consider a necessary and very proper part of our national identity.

"On the whole, African countries see little worth imitating in American countries often seem more appropriate, although we must be careful to avoid pitfalls which they have fallen into. The rugged individualism of America is alien to our communal African traditions. The vastness of scale of much American enterprise bears little relation to our primary task of improving the lot of our peasant farmers. If we look to China for economic examples of organisation rather than to America it does not mean that we approve of their politics. But when we come to political institutions and organisation our experiments in democracy are in a sense nearer those to be found in the Western political liberal traditions.

"Whether (or not) some countries adopt one party state the concept of parliamentary democracy based on universal franchise is already deeply entrenched and in most countries multi-party parliaments have become part of our tradition. In Kenya we have gone even further in the matter or providing for primary elections. The former colonial power, Britain, left us with a system based on her own, in which primaries are unknown.

For reasons which may well be different from those which promoted America to adopt them, we now consider them useful and intend to introduce them for the first time at the forthcoming General Elections.

"There are many issues which are of vital concern to Americans on which African leaders are often questioned. They want to know what is the view of Africans, for example, about the war in Vietnam. Apart from our concern over the threat to world peace and suffering inflicted on innocent people, we see it as a warning of what happens when a small country becomes too closely involved with the major power blocs.

"But there is one American preoccupation which is a matter of deep concern to Africans. I mean, of course, the race war in America. In one way or another most African countries have had a hard struggle for their independence. In many cases, there was bloodshed before the colonialists would let go. I am sad to say that the lesson has not yet been learnt and that there will be even greater bloodshed before Southern Africa is free.

"All of this and more makes the racial issue in America of concern to us. Whether or not we approve of American policies and actions we shall continue to be interested in what happens in the country, particularly because of the 20 million or so Black Americans and of everything which concerns this part of the population. Their freedom and status of Black people in the world community. But we struggle for the rights and status of Black people in our world community. But we need to know more about each other than we do today. That is to say, Black people in America need to know more about independent Africa. The continent has not stood still since independence. We have new problems, new challenges and new achievements. For their part, the people of Africa need to be told more about the struggle of Black Americans, their aspirations, their policies, their organisations and leaders. At present we only see the often distorted and slanted view given by a few American popular publications. If our attitudes towards one another are to be realistic, we must have a far greater knowledge than we do at present."

CHICKEN IN THE MORNIN' ... Simmer in the good old summertime. No need to sweeter in hot kitchen when the temperature is up. Take advantage of the morning breeze to simmer a chicken for a real cool dinner. But chicken in a kettle with 2 cups water, onion, celery, bay leaves, Ac'cent, salt and pepper. Bring to a boil, cover tightly and reduce heat allowing chicken to simmer for 1 hour until tender. Remove from heat, strain broth and refrigerate chicken and broth at once. When cool, here's what you do. Remove meat from bones and dice. Combine diced chicken with some sliced celery and pecans and toss lightly with a dressing of mayonnaise, lemon juice and Worcestershire sauce. Voila, a savory summer chicken salad for a perfect dinner entrée. For flavor variation try adding grapes, sliced peaches, or small melon wedges in place of the pecans and celery.

Nixon Hoping to

Employ Women in Government Jobs

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon hopes for breakthroughs in appointing more qualified women to such government jobs as the judiciary, federal boards and commissions, says an aide, and a court post "could lead at some future date to a woman on the Supreme Court."

Saying this Wednesday was presidential press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, who added that Nixon's "intent is not to indicate that he, as President, will necessarily appoint a woman to the Supreme Court."

Ziegler commented to clear up confusion created last week. At that time Four Republican congresswoman appealed to Nixon for more high-policy jobs for women in the administration. They left with the impression he might try to specifically appoint a woman to the Supreme Court or the Federal Communications Commission.

The Nixon administration has named only a few women to posts, a total of 35, which includes 15 part-time consultants to advisory boards and commissions.

At Kentucky Prison

This Miss Doesn't Want Out

By SY RAMSEY

Associated Press Writer

PEWEE VALLEY, Ky. (AP) — Betty Greenwell is smart, shapely, pretty and at 26 possibly the youngest warden of a women's prison in the nation.

She presides over a staff of 32 guards and administrators, eight male trustees and, currently, 60 inmates of the Kentucky Correctional Institution for Women.

The prison is nestled in the rural tranquility of this whistletop about 10 miles from Louisville. There are no signs identifying the huge brick building on a hill. The only clue to the nature of the building is a high steel fence topped by strands of barbed wire.

Miss Greenwell commutes here every weekday from her Louisville apartment.

With her mini-skirted dress, semi-bouffant frosted hair and sparkling greenish eyes, she seems a bit out of place in the drab institution.

But Miss Greenwell is earnest about her job and articulate about life in and out of prison. "Unless you're rendering services to other people, your own goals are selfish," she said. "I think our society is selfish enough as it is. Every one's basic goal is to make money."

Five years ago Miss Greenwell, then a starry-eyed University of Louisville student, began helping for the summer on a psychological survey of residents.

Later she became the first teacher at the prison, working under a warden who changed the institution's outlook from custodial to rehabilitative. "We called it the dynasty of worth and dignity," Miss Greenwell said. "The basic philosophy continues."

Miss Greenwell, who has a master's degree in guidance and counseling, always has found her residents "really fascinating people ... each has an interesting story, although they'll try to con you at first."

Half the population consists of convicted murderers, six of them bed, chair, lavatory facilities and a serving life terms. One-third in view from the window of rolling cludes "paper hangers" forgers hills and the picnic area in front of the building.)

Almost all the killers had a husband or lover as victim, out of building just outside the main jealousy "or in a moment of gate."

Miss Greenwell said there are she regards them as the best few major problems with prison parole risks.

Her main headache, she said, is the "paper hangers" are indicated, is the pettiness and tougher breed, she added, who feel gossip that leads to verbal or under their strange code they have physical fights.

Under nothing wrong "if someone "Their world is so narrow that was sucker enough" to trust them, basic needs assume an undue in."

The average stay here is about portance," she said. "Most of my two years, although murderers trouble is usually a matter of 'she are not considered for parole be said this about me' and such."

Whenever possible Miss Greenwell tries to talk to a resident elsewhere than in her office "to apiece. However, five women prisoners actually prefer to sleep in the cells — otherwise reserved for isolation or punishment. (The 10 cellblocks here aren't as bad as they sound. They have curtains, a Homosexuality is the least of her worries, Miss Greenwell indicated. It is punishable by isolation.

"I'd like to teach or counsel at a men's reformatory," she said. "After all, how are you going to make gentlemen of prisoners if they don't relate to women?"

INSTANT NO-WORK PICNIC. — It's as easy as chicken. For a lunch to eat "on the go" that pleases everyone, simply pick up a bucket or box of fried chicken from a drive-in. Bring some crisp celery stalks, carrot sticks and a basket of fruit from your refrigerator to complete the meal, and you're ready to spread that outdoor table.

Thoughts Of Astronauts Families

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — No different from the rest of the nation, the proud Apollo 11 wives struggled to find enough adjectives to express their feelings for their men on the moon.

"The evening has been unbelievable perfect," Mrs. Neil Armstrong said today after watching the moon explorations of her husband and Edwin E. Aldrin Jr. "It is an honor and privilege to share with my husband, the crew, the Manned Spacecraft Center, the American public and all of mankind this magnificent experience of the beginning of lunar exploration."

Earlier, Mrs. Armstrong expressed her feelings much more simply. "I was tremendously excited," she said. "It was hard to think it was real until the men actually moved," said Mrs. Aldrin. "I felt I was looking at another simulation."

After the moon touchdown Mrs. Aldrin said she wept "because I was so happy."

"I thought it was fantastically marvelous," said Mrs. Michael Collins, whose husband flew a moon orbit in the command capsule while the two other crewmen visited the lunar surface.

"Don't you think he is with them there in spirit?" Mrs. Collins replied when asked if her husband was disappointed because he was not in the landing party.

All Apollo families planned to sleep late today before the next critical phase, blastoff from the moon.

Tuesday night, if everything goes right, the three wives will be honored at a pre-splashdown party given by astronaut Bill Anders.

"The splashdown will be the best part of the flight," Mrs. Aldrin said Sunday at a news conference.

And Mrs. Armstrong did not consider the moon landing the greatest moment of her life.

"That was when we were married," she said.

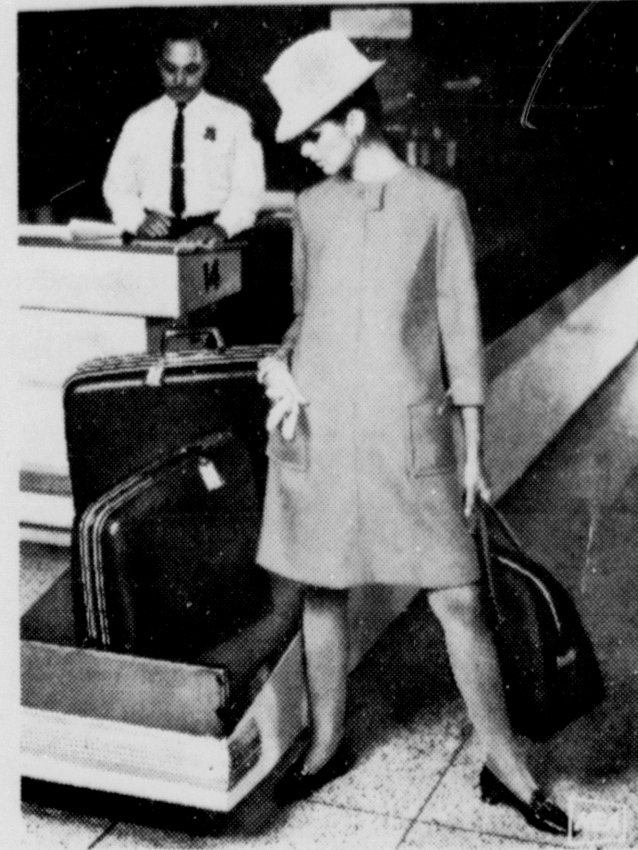

The astronauts' children shared in Sunday's excitement, and in the praise of their fathers.

"It was pretty exciting," said 12-year-old Ricky Armstrong. "I'm proud of daddy."

"It was very exciting," said 11-year-old Andy Aldrin.

Had Andy any ambitions to become an astronaut?

"Oh Lord, I couldn't go through this twice," Mrs. Aldrin answered.

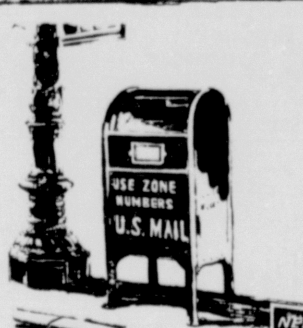

First to catch the inspector's eye as fresh as at departure is the Leslie Fay demitond of bonded 100 per cent worsted wool gabardine. The matching pullman case, overnight case and Handi-Tote make travel a breeze, too. The purse's big sister is the handy tote bag. These popular carry-alls were recently introduced after consumer research indicated that girls wanted a soft-sided, convenient case to carry on board planes and a smart item for toting things needed for a day at the office. Tote bag and luggage are Samsonite designs.

A simple way to stop hiccups has been discovered by a hospital aide, who has tried it (with physicians' approval) in 57 cases — with 100 per cent success.

Benjamin H. Tiso of Boston City Hospital seats his patients upright, then tilts back the head while applying one drop of ammonia in each nostril. This is followed by a few minutes of oxygen inhalation. Nothing else is required.

The Zoning Improvement Plan (ZIP code) of the Post Office Department was instituted in 1963, says The World Almanac. The five digits of the ZIP code identify every postal community in the 50 states and outlying territories from Puerto Rico to the Palau Islands.

UNLIKELY WARDEN — Betty Greenwell, 26-year-old warden of the Kentucky Correctional Institution for Women, confers with a prisoner.

"The majority of our women are married with children, the settled kind," she said. "I think there is less homosexuality here than in the general population, and our security is tight."

Despite her deep involvement with the prison, Miss Greenwell is aware that she must get away from her work and people occasionally.

Her favorite pastime is to rent a rowboat, go out in the middle of a quiet lake "and just meditate."

Sometimes she tries sailing and tennis.

Marriage? "There's someone in the Air Force, but I have no plans yet."

Miss Greenwell is looking forward to breaking some of the invisible barriers in the prison field.

"I'd like to teach or counsel at a men's reformatory," she said. "After all, how are you going to make gentlemen of prisoners if they don't relate to women?"

McLain, Carlton Named Starters McSinnis Wins Sikeston Standings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Denny McLain of the Detroit Tigers and Steve Carlton of the St. Louis Cardinals will be the opposing pitchers in Tuesday night's all-star game in the nation's capital, it was announced today.

The managers of the American and National League all-star teams, Mayo Smith of Detroit and Red Schoendienst of St. Louis, each chose his own

Little Leaguers

A number of extra base hits highlighted the opening American League game and very few hits were characteristic of the second battle as Leslie Insurance and First National came through with wins.

Leslie bombed Ziegenhorn in the sixth inning with 11 big runs to set its margin at 11-1 to take the win.

Extra base hits in the game by Lambert, Wilson, Shaner, Collier, and two by Hill.

Hill also received the win from the mound, while Davidson took the loss.

Second contest saw Police get dropped by First National 18-11. Few hits were tallied as Police accumulated two and First National collected only one.

Two of these were doubles, however, as Godwin and Whitaker were credited with the hits.

Whittaker finished with the win for First National and Tidwell was endowed with the loss.

Some Imagination Needed For Rush Repair Service

By SUSAN SHEMWELL
It is possible to be surrounded by air-conditioners and still have sweat standing on your brow - if you are an electrical repairman hard at work in July.

Repairmen are working overtime on the influx of air-conditioners, fans and irrigation pumps that break down during the summer months because of overuse, or worn-out parts.

Customers brought 15 air-conditioners to Fred and Dick Happe's repair shop Monday. When customers are used to air-cooled homes, they sometimes want repair service faster than it can be done, Fred said.

The most frequent requests for quick service come from impatient men, Dick said.

"Several men have called about their appliances and have said that their wives were sick and would get worse, unless they were near an air-conditioner," he said.

The man's own comfort was probably the real reason for the call, Fred laughed.

People with broken air-conditioners are not the only ones who depend on the electrical repairman in the summer. Portageville children were hoping that the Happe brothers would repair quickly the city swimming pool water pump.

"This was one project that got a rush job," Dick said. The repairmen worked on that project late Monday night so that bathers could splash back in the pool the next day.

The brothers repair about 300 air-conditioners during the summer months. They are probably as busy as other local repairmen, and are working 50 or more hours a week on the summer rush.

Repairmen covered with grease and hard at work under bright lights, are often amused by the requests for special favors in finishing the appliance. "I am just returning from the hospital," and "My children cannot sleep without an air-conditioner," are used very often, Fred said.

So if you are needing your repairman, use a little imagination before you phone. Think of a plea that will keep him grinning while he does the job.

PUTTING SCREWDRIVERS to two air-conditioners, Fred (left) and Dick Happe, repairmen, work on the summer rush of broken cooling appliances.

Our failure to develop an ABM defense actually invites attack from enemy countries today, and whoever may develop one later, Lenin stated, "It doesn't matter if three-quarters of the world is wiped out, if the remaining one-quarter is communist," and this is the philosophy with which we are confronted. The public may not understand the situation. In 1940, the U.S. had 297,000 engineers and scientists and Russia had 295,000. By 1968, Russia had 2,120,000 and the U.S. 1,055,000. General A. C. Wedemeyer may represent the MacArthur-trained military statesmen who understand both science and the nature of our

Sikeston Admiral Worked Way Up from Ranks

By William E. Shull
(A Member of The Star's Staff)

Aboard the USS Independence - One of the Navy's newest admirals, a native of Sikeston, Mo., earned his stars the hard way - by working up from the rank of seaman.

Capt. Herbert Spencer Matthews, 48, commander of the aircraft carrier, Independence, will receive the rank of admiral officially September 11 at Pensacola, Fla., where he will command the Navy's pilot training program.

Achievement Is Rare
According to other officers aboard the carrier, Matthews is the first admiral in years to have begun at seaman.

"I joined the Navy reserve in 1940 as a seaman," Matthews said, "I was living in New Madrid, Mo., and working in a government agriculture office. About a year later, I applied for flight training, and the Navy agreed to send me two years to Tulane university to get the educational background needed."

Matthews surprised everyone, including college officials, when he was graduated in two years and eight months with a bachelor's degree in mathematics and a Phi Beta Kappa key.

Time Hurried Him
"I had asked the Navy to let me take four years for the regular program, but they said no because they needed pilots," Matthews explained. "I just decided to get the degree before I left."

He was commissioned in 1943 and spent the rest of the war in a bombing squadron in the European theater. He flew 50 combat missions and received the Air Medal.

After World War II, Matthews became a test pilot and was one of the first Navy pilots to receive jet training.

Postwar tours included duty on several aircraft carriers as pilot, ship's officer and carrier division staff member. Helped Form Group

In 1960, he and five other Navy officers organized the Navy's long-range study group, the Institute of Naval Studies.

"When we submitted our first report," Matthews said, "the Navy said our predictions through 1970 were impractical, if not impossible."

"However, by 1965, they were asking for reprints because most of our predictions were already fact, and the rest were way ahead of schedule in planning."

In his first Vietnam tour in 1964 to 1965 as executive officer on the USS Hancock, Matthews received the Navy Commendation ribbon for strikes against North Vietnam in February, 1965.

Given First Command
In 1967, after a tour on the staff of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Matthews assumed his first command - a dock landing ship, the USS Hermitage.

A Vietnam tour aboard the Hermitage resulted in the Bronze Star medal for Matthews and the Meritorious Unit Citation for the ship.

Matthews assumed command of the Independence September 2, 1968, but preparation for the post began weeks earlier.

"I had not landed on a carrier deck for two or three years," Matthews said, "and wanted the men to know that I still could."

"So, before I went to the Independence, I went back to Pensacola for a refresher course in carrier landings and flew onto the carrier for the change of command ceremony."

Course Not Common
Matthews admitted the refresher course was a little unusual. A seaman commented, "Usually carrier commanders are too old to do things like that."

Matthews is reluctant to discuss another preparatory step, but a sister, Mrs. Lynn Mouchett of Sikeston, is proud of it.

"Right after the flight training," Mrs. Mouchett explained, "Spence went to California to some type of engineering school. He studied all the blueprints of the ship, from top to bottom, so he would know what he was commanding. Strive for Betterment

"The Navy always gives officers a few weeks in between commands and most use them for vacation. But Spence would rather work at being a better commander."

Matthews's "follow-me" technique of command has won deep respect from his crew although, at times, it has embarrassed them.

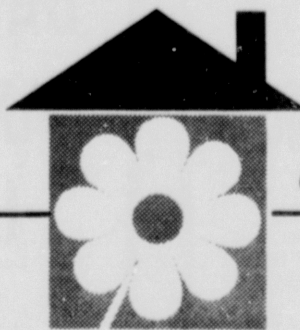

"I challenged the Marine detachment aboard ship to a standing broad jump contest last month to emphasize the need for physical fitness," Matthews related. "At stake was an extra day of liberty (leave) for them."

"All they had to do was have a majority of the 70 marines on board ship beat me. I think it hurt their pride when only nine marines could do it."

A marine, when asked about the story, admitted it was true. "But that's just like the Old Man, he's always beating us or trying to beat us at something." (From the Kansas City Times, July 17.)

Nixon Birth Control Plan Draws Praise

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Population and sex information experts have praised President Nixon's proposal to make free birth control advice and contraceptive devices available within five years to all low-income American women of child-bearing age.

Many church officials deferred comment on the proposal until they could study it in detail, but a Roman Catholic spokesman said such a program would put too much pressure on the poor.

"There is an implicit pressure in receiving from the same hand both a welfare check and advice on what to do to keep the family down," said Msgr. Hugh Curran, director of the Roman Catholic archdiocesan family life bureau in New York.

"The real question is one of freedom, not of contraception," Msgr. Curran said, adding that he did not think it was "the proper role of the government to embark on a contraceptive program."

The Rt. Rev. C. Kilmer Myers, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of California, said, "The position of the Episcopal Church is that population control is the most vital cog in the approach to the world's environmental problems, and the President has taken a step in the right direction."

Dr. Alan F. Guttmacher, president of Planned Parenthood, said the proposal was the "magnificent culmination" of a federal government policy which evolved over several years.

"It certainly should make possible babies by choice rather than by chance for all Americans irrespective of financial or any other considerations," he said.

Dr. Mary Calderone, executive director of the Sex Information and Education Council of the United States (SIECUS), called the message "a tremendous step forward toward peace, peace because population pressures engender hostility, locally and nationally."

An Indianapolis woman, 36, with eight children and a husband making $36-a-week takehome pay, said, "I wish somebody had told me about birth control before now. It's too late to do me much good but it will help my daughters."
